Tenant shuns eviction notice

Bradford Dow, the tenant at the city-owned Flanders mansion in Carmel, has an eviction notice hanging from his front door but he says he isn't leaving. At least, not until his new house is finished in Carmel Valley. He intends to appeal an unfavorable court ruling to buy time for the contractors to finish the house. Page 2.

Suspected arsonist freed

Carmel arson investigators have freed a Carmel man who they believe set at least two of the six recent fires of suspicious origin. The investigators released the man because they have no witnesses who could testify in court. Page 2.

Sewage agency chief ousted

Max R. Drewien, general manager of the Carmel Sanitary District for the past 11 years, was ousted from office Monday. He was accused of nepotism and mismanagement and told he would be terminated in 30 days. Pending an appeal, he is on leave without pay. Page 2.

Marriott size is halved

Developers of the Rancho Canada Marriott Lodge in Carmel Valley have slashed the number of rooms by more than half. The move is viewed as a way to gain support for the resort plan that appeared to be doomed by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors last month. Page 3.

Scope of annexation shrinks

Two of the four unincorporated neighbors next to Carmel have been excluded from annexation deliberations. But two others, Carmel Woods and Hatton Fields, still may be joined with the city. By the end of January, the Carmel City Council must call a special hearing to listen to the arguments pro and con from voters and landowners from the two neighborhoods. Page 3.

School trustee will retire

When her term expires next year, Carmel School Trustee Pamela Smith will not seek re-election. Of the five trustees questioned, only Mrs. Smith said she would bow out. The reason for the inquiry was a new state law that changed the date of school board elections. They customarily are conducted in March, but next year they will be in November, leaving trustees with an additional seven months to serve. Page 3.

Skiing on $5 and $10 a day

Skiing has become an expensive sport, but the Carmel Ski Club has a no-frills way to enjoy the slopes without going broke. The group members own a ski lodge that can sleep up to 40. You can get a bed for as little as $3 a night. Page 6.

Ice cream 'da,' not stewardesses

Carmel attorney Don Freeman just returned from the Soviet Union. His report: Ice cream 'da,' airline stewardesses 'nyet.' Freeman said the desserts were delightful but the stews were fat. He also was ejected from a bookstore when he asked to buy a copy of the Soviet penal code. Page 14.

Globe-trotting golfer

At 82, George Salter of Carmel Valley is winning a numbers game. He wants to play golf in every world nation with a course. So far, he has played in 116 countries and, as he reckons it, there still are about seven to go. Page 17.

Flanders mansion tenant

Court-backed eviction notice unheeded by Dow

Bradford Dow has appealed the Oct. 18 ruling by a Monterey Superior Court judge that he must vacate the city-owned Flanders mansion.

The appeal was filed Nov. 20 in the First District Court of Appeals in San Francisco by Dow's attorney, Richard Wilsdon. It came just two days after the city tacked an eviction notice on the door of the mansion. The notice ordered Dow out of the house by 4 p.m. last Thursday. But Dow said last week that he won't be out until Christmas.

Superior Court Judge Ralph Drummond was scheduled to rule Tuesday afternoon if Dow could remain in the house until the appeal is heard. The appeal could take up to a year, according to Wilsdon. On Oct. 18, Drummond signed an "intended decision" to return control of the Flanders house to the city. Dow was ordered to pay the city more than $1,500 in back rent and legal fees.

Dow last stated that he wanted to remain in the house until Thanksgiving when his new home in Carmel Valley was scheduled for completion. Due to construction delays, he now wants to stay until Christmas.

"In the scheme of things, an extra two or three weeks is not that big a deal. I just want enough time until the house is ready," Dow said in a telephone interview.

Three weeks ago, Wilsdon requested findings for Drummond's intended decision. The judgment for that decision was written by Carmel City Attorney George Brehmer at Drummond's request. Brehmer also wrote the findings. Wilsdon filed an objection to the findings, requesting a hearing before Drummond. That hearing was denied.

"What I'm irate about is that the city is 'spending taxpayers' money on something that will probably end up as we wanted it anyway," Dow said. Dow estimated he already has spent more than $1,000 in attorney fees. Drummond ordered Dow to pay $750 for the city's legal expenses. The city had requested $2,000. The fee to appeal the judge's decision cost an additional $50, according to Wilsdon.

"It's an exercise in futility," commented Wilsdon.

Carmel filed suit against Dow after he refused to move out of the mansion when his lease expired. In 1975, the city approved a two-year lease for Dow. The $400-a-month lease provided for three successive one-year renewal options.

Dow attempted to use an option to extend the lease. But the city declined to grant the request. Dow was told that the city had found a "municipal purpose" for the house. The house was to be used as a home for City Administrator Jack Collins and his family. It also would be used for public events such as city-sponsored parties four times each year.

Asked when he plans to move into the mansion, Collins responded last week by saying, "I don't know. I haven't heard a thing."

"I'm not packed," Dow said, "and I'm not moving yet."

Trackdown of Carmel arsonist leads nowhere

Arson investigators have released an 18-year-old man who they believe has set at least two of six fires of suspicious origin in the past month.

The unidentified man lives in Carmel and was questioned and released last week. Police have no witnesses so they cannot make an arrest, said Vern Allred, the assistant fire chief and city arson investigator. The six fires caused an estimated $5,000 in damage.

"If we could get a witness to identify him as starting them, we'd call him back for more questioning. But right now, there's nothing we can do," Allred said. Witnesses spotted the man at the scene of two fires on Nov. 19. But none saw him set the blazes, Allred said. Police became suspicious when the suspect reported two of the fires to them.

The suspect became "quite put off and uncooperative," Allred said, when police asked him if he set the fires. He denied setting any of them. Allred and a police officer questioned the man at the Carmel Police Department on Sunday, Nov. 19, less than 30 minutes after firemen put out four fires of suspicious origin.

The fires on Sunday were all within two blocks of each other. They occurred in Carmel's light commercial area north of the central business district. Three of the fires involved burning trash. One was a vehicle fire. All occurred between midnight and 1 a.m.

Firemen also suspect the arsonist set one or two fires earlier this month. One of those fires, at the Galerie de Tours art gallery on Sixth and San Carlos, caused an estimated $2,500 damage to a storage shed behind the gallery. No paintings were damaged.

This was the sequence of the fires:

- At 12:02 a.m., the man reported a fire in a parking lot trash container adjacent to the rear of Fritz Radio and TV on Fifth Avenue between Mission and Junipero. The fire caused an estimated $1,000 damage to a wood fence and shed in the area.

- At 12:48 a.m., the man also reported a fire in a trash bin in an indoor parking area behind the Horizon Inn. The fire caused an estimated $500 damage to the trash receptacles.

- At 12:52 a.m., a fireman on the way to the scene of the Horizon Inn fire, spotted a vehicle fire in the parking lot of the Tradewinds Inn on the east side of Mission between Third and Fourth avenues. A cloth cover on a sports car was ignited causing an estimated $1,000 damage to the car.

- At 12:59 a.m., police received an anonymous tip that stored rug material was burning in an indoor parking area at the Mission Court Apartments on the east side of Mission between Fourth and Fifth avenues. The fire caused an estimated $100 in smoke damage.

Firemen have attempted to link the man with two other fires earlier in November. They are:

- A box of discarded books set ablaze outside the Carmel Masonic Temple on Lincoln and Seventh on Nov. 4. The late evening blaze was set at 11:20 p.m.

- The Galerie de Tours fire set Nov. 5 at 11:16 p.m. A Carmel police officer on patrol spotted the fire.

"We'll start going over the bones of past fires and see if any others tie in," Fire Chief Robert Updike said.

The department knows of no motive for the fires, Allred said. "There doesn't seem to be a motive, unless the guy likes burning garbage," Updike said.

Carmel has never carried an arson case to court, Allred said. There are seldom eyewitnesses. The investigations are expensive, time-consuming and most evidence is lost in the fire, Allred explained.

Promoted his son

Sewer chief Max Drewien ousted; charged with nepotism

EVIDENCE of nepotism and refusal to carry out agency policy has led to the ouster of Max R. Drewien, general manager of the Carmel Sanitary District.

Acting in a closed session Monday, the district board of directors gave Drewien 30-day notice of the firing. The vote was 3-2. Drewien, who receives $26,016 a year, can appeal the decision. The board would hear his appeal.

Drewien, 59, has been a district employee for more than 30 years. His firing was opposed by two directors, Ted Weller and Jim Pruitt. Charlotte Hurst, Vernon Head and Ken McGinnis favored it. If upheld, Drewien's dismissal becomes effective Dec. 31. Drewien has been put on a leave of absence without pay.

In a three-page resolution, the directors outlined their charges against Drewien. They said:

- Max P. Drewien, a district employee and the son of Drewien, was promoted although Drewien had promoted the same promotion to another employee. Drewien reportedly told the board members he had to promote his son to avoid domestic problems with his wife.

- Drewien hired his son's father-in-law, Paul Ricketson, despite a district policy against nepotism.

MAX R. Drewien, general manager of the Carmel Sanitary District, has been put on leave without pay pending a hearing.

Ricketson is a sewer maintenance worker being trained by the district.

- Employee overtime policies were changed by Drewien without consulting with budget committee of the district board of directors.

- Drewien was responsible for a two-year delay in hiring a district engineer.

- An office secretary was not allowed to attend a bookkeeping course on agency time. Drewien refused to allow her to go despite a vote by the board of directors authorizing it.

The resolution of intent to fire also charged that Drewien hired employees before getting results of mandatory pre-employment physical examinations. It also said he had not advertised job vacancies before filling them.

The incidents show "a lack of administrative and management ability," the resolution said. Drewien has "caused dissension among district employees by not complying with the intent and spirit of the established ordinances and policies," it also said.

Drewien had no comment following the vote Monday. "I knew something was in the air since I got back from vacation," he did say. He returned in early November.

Mrs. Hurst would make no comment on the advice of Donald Freeman, the attorney for the district. District employees also have been instructed to say nothing about the matter, she added.

Weller, who voted in the minority on the dismissal resolution, also said he had no comment on the action.

Drewien was hired by the district in October 1946 as a maintenance worker. He took a 16-month leave that ended in 1953. He was appointed general manager in December 1967.

Garbage company executive says other firms ignore city franchise

Outside firms are disregarding an exclusive garbage collection agreement that the John Roscelli Corp. has with Carmel, the company manager charged Monday.

James Carroll, manager of John Roscelli Corp., is scheduled to address the Carmel City Council next Monday on the issue. Other firms are illegally picking up refuse from some local businesses, claimed Carroll. Roscelli has the garbage collection franchise in the city. Roscelli collects garbage both in the residential and commercial districts.

Fewer than 1 per cent of the merchants have left Roscelli, but that could represent a growing trend that would force a collection fee hike, according to Councilman

Mike Brown, a member of the Monterey County Garbage and Refuse District.

An amendment to the exclusive franchise agreement has been suggested by Richard B. Maxwell, an attorney for Roscelli. The amendment would specify that Roscelli would collect all garbage, ashes and refuse. The present contract refers only to garbage.

Carroll was scheduled to request the amendment at the Nov. 13 council meeting. He did not attend that session so the matter was postponed.

In February 1971 Roscelli signed a 10-year exclusive franchise agreement with the city.

Marriott coming back at half the size

Resort lodge that seemed to be doomed is cut from 376 to 175 rooms

By KEN PETERSON

DEVELOPERS OF the proposed Rancho Canada Marriott Lodge have cut the number of rooms in half in an effort to salvage what seemed to be a doomed project a month ago.

Monterey County Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon confirmed last week that Gerald Dalton, the attorney for the Winthrop Carmel Inc. development group, contacted him about proceeding with a use permit for the scaled-down hotel at the mouth of the Carmel Valley.

Slimmon said the revised project, as outlined to him, would have 175 rooms instead of the 376 originally proposed. Six of the 12 proposed tennis courts also would be removed, he said. In addition, the nine golf course holes that would have been eliminated under the original Marriott Lodge application probably would be untouched, according to Slimmon. The site is at one corner of Rancho Canada Golf and Country Club.

The hotel probably will come up for a hearing on Jan. 31 before the Monterey County Planning Commission, Slimmon said.

Nick Lombardo, operator of Rancho Canada and a member of the development partnership, refused to confirm or deny the changes.

"I can't make any definitive statement at this time," he said last week. "We have no story to present at this time at all. We can't go before the planning commission until

The original hotel project would have covered 25 acres of the 271-acre golf course.

OPPONENTS CHARGED that the hotel would compound traffic problems in the area, that it is inconsistent with land use planning for the Lower Valley and that sewage and water supply questions remain to be answered.

They mustered nearly 2,000 signatures on petitions opposing the project and packed public hearings on the issue.

The consistency issue was decided on a 3-2 vote by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors on Oct. 24. Supervisors Edwin Norris, Kenneth Blohm and Michal Moore overruled the planning commission and declared that a hotel is an appropriate land use for the site. Supervisors Sam Farr and Dusan Petrovic dissented.

Moore said at the time, however, that he would oppose the specific 376-room Marriott proposal if it ever reached the board. His vote, together with those of Farr and Petrovic, would defeat the hotel project.

Planning Commissioner William Peters of Carmel Valley said there still is a question whether any size hotel would be appropriate.

"The question is whether I would vote for a 20-room hotel there," he said. "I don't know. If I find a hotel is appropriate, then we can squabble about the number of units."

PETERS ADVANCED the argument last spring that the entire Marriott project is inconsistent with master plans and land use plans for the Lower Carmel Valley.

Commission Chairman Charmaine Cruchett, who will be off the panel by the time of the next Marriott hearing, said the reduction in rooms would not change her vote. She wanted the project denied from the beginning.

"I'm sorry we didn't do it straight," she said. "I hate getting involved in these numbers games. I think a straight-out denial is cleaner."

The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association will not alter its opposition to the hotel either, according to President Douglas Despard.

The organization agreed with the planning commission decision that any hotel is an inconsistent use of the Rancho Canada property. Cutting the hotel capacity to 175 rooms matters "not a bit," Despard said.

With 175 rooms, the Marriott Lodge would become the largest hotel in the Carmel area. The Holiday Inn in the Carmel Rancho center has 162 rooms, the greatest number south of Monterey. Other major hotels around the city include the Highlands Inn with 103 rooms, Del Monte Lodge in Pebble Beach with 133 rooms, Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley with 96 and La Playa Hotel in Carmel with 75 rooms.

In Monterey itself, the new Doubletree Inn is the Peninsula's largest hotel. It has 375 rooms.

But two other areas stay

Carmel Point, Mission Fields off annexation list

THE CARMEL CITY Council must call a protest hearing by the end of January on a proposal to annex Carmel Woods and the Hatton Fields area to the city.

But residents of Carmel Point and Mission Fields have been excluded from further annexation discussions by the Monterey County Local Agency Formation Commission.

Meeting before an audience of more than 400 at Sunset Center Tuesday night, the commission voted 3-2 to limit potential annexation to the unincorporated areas west of Highway 1 and north of Rio Road.

Opponents of annexation must gather signatures of at least 25 per cent of the registered voters and property owners in the two areas to force an election on the issue. If more than 50 per cent of the registered voters oppose the idea, it will die without the need for a ballot.

The five-member LAFCO board agreed that annexing all four areas probably is a logical and efficient way to handle local government for the territories bordering Carmel but outside its jurisdiction.

But the panel also heeded strong public opposition among Carmel Point residents in dropping that area from consideration. Opponents had gathered 271 signatures which, if valid, represent 54 per cent of the voters and landowners in the area.

WE GOT IT! We got it! We got it! We got it! We got it!" exclaimed Katherine Woodward of Carmel Point after the LAFCO vote. "They couldn't ignore 54 per cent of the people."

The Mission Fields area was excluded at the suggestion of Salinas Mayor Henry Hibino, a LAFCO member. If an annexation vote had included Carmel Woods, Hatton Fields and Mission Fields, voters in Carmel also would have participated in the election. He feared that Carmel voters could tip an election in favor of annexation even if residents of the unincorporated areas opposed it.

As it is, Carmel Woods and Hatton Fields alone do not have enough population or assessed valuation to bring Carmel voters into the process. The areas will, in the words of LAFCO executive officer Michael Johnson, "determine their own destiny."

Carmel voters would have a voice in the annexations only if territories to be annexed increased either the assessed valuation or number of voters of the city by 50 per cent.

The Woods area has 794 registered voters and Hatton Fields has 752. Carmel has 3,386 voters.

DURING THREE HOURS of debate on annexation, 12 opponents criticized the way Carmel handles its city affairs and expressed fear about what services they would receive in the future.

Five supporters of the proposal authored by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors sought to allay those fears and emphasized the logic of having a single government for the greater Carmel area west of Highway 1.

"Carmel is incapable of handling its own problems," said real estate agent Adeline

DiLorenzo Kimball, a Carmel Point resident who also owns property in Carmel Woods. "If they're not capable of handling their problems with the kind of money they have, there is no reason for joining them at this time."

Michael Troian of Mission Fields agreed.

Other incumbents game

Pamela Smith rules out bid for new school board term

MARCH COMES in November next year as far as Carmel school board candidates are concerned. And that is seven months later than one board member likes.

Under a new state law that takes effect Jan. 1, school district elections will be conducted in November rather than the traditional spring date.

Those trustees in office will find their terms extended by seven months.

Trustee Pamela Smith is up for reelection in 1979. Board members Richard Wilsdon, Elizabeth Bell and Clayton Neill Jr. also have expiring terms. Neill will run for a two-year term because he is filling the "Carmel village does not seem at this point to be quite equipped to double its size," he said.

Dr. Francis Herrick, a Carmel resident and unsuccessful City Council candidate last spring, objected to annexation because it

"WE GOT IT! We got it!" exclaimed Katherine Woodward, an annexation opponent from Carmel Point.

CARMEL WOODS resident Don Freeman favored annexation because he could vote for Carmel city councilmen.

vacancy created when Edward Reilly resigned from the board in 1977. The other three seats carry four-year terms.

Mrs. Smith is the only one of the four who has decided she will not seek another term.

I MUST ADMIT I was dreaming some beautiful dreams about what I would do with my spare time when I was off the school board," Mrs. Smith said. "My plans aren't anything that can't wait. I'll just have to delay them a little while longer."

By remaining on the board until fall, she and the other board members will oversee yet another budget session, their second under the constraints of Proposition 13.

Wilsdon said he is "indifferent" to the extra seven months of work. He said having fall rather than spring elections will make it easier for new board members. They will begin their terms without the looming presence of June budget decisions right after they take office.

Wilsdon said he has not made up his mind about running for a fourth term on the board.

Mrs. Bell, a first-term board member, said she is not planning to leave the board. On the other hand, she has not definitely decided to run again.

"It's too early to make a decision," she said.

Mrs. Bell is not concerned about the additional seven months in office. But she mentioned that several people, anticipating the usual spring vote, already have been talking about candidates for the four seats up for election.

Neill also said he has given little thought to running for election to his seat. He served two terms from 1961 to 1969 before accepting his appointment to the board after Reilly resigned.

For potential school board candidates, the traditional winter filing dates go by the board for the November ballot. Filing opens for the school board vacancies on Aug. 9 next year and closes Aug. 31.

New cat tag service aimed at No. 1 animal problem

Carmel cat owners: do you know where your pet is tonight?

It may be easier to trace lost or stray cats and get them back to their homes thanks to a new program begun by the Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

For a $7 fee, the SPCA will register your cat with an individually numbered tag and a breakaway collar. The tag also will have the 24-hour SPCA telephone number on it. Anyone who finds a missing cat can call the number. The SPCA will pick up and hold the cat until they can contact its owner.

The registration fee is only $5 for spayed or neutered cats, according to Andrea Hoover, education officer for the SPCA. Registration is good for five years, she said.

Pamela Mason, the Carmel animal control officer, is glad someone is doing something to help identify stray cats. She calls strays "the biggest problem" in animal control in the city.

Miss Mason could not say how many strays there are, but averred that there are "an awful lot." Carmel, she said, is "overrun with wild cats."

"When I find a cat, I have no idea who it belongs to," she said. "Most people don't look for their cat for two, three, four days because they're roamers."

In that time, she said, the animal already may have been put to sleep at the SPCA pound. Law requires the SPCA to hold a stray for three days.

As far as Miss Mason is concerned, the city should require licensing of cats just as it does for dogs.

City Administrator Jack Collins said

"TOM," THE tabby mascot at the Monterey County SPCA Shelter, was one of the first cats to be tagged. He is held by Carolyn Truesdell of Carmel Valley.

he has not received a formal proposal for cat licensing in the city nor has he heard many complaints about cats running amok.

He said the city might consider such an ordinance if it is requested in the future. In the meantime, he added, voluntary registration sounds like a good first step before Carmel moves to license its cats.

Information about the SPCA registration program can be obtained by phoning 373-2631.

Will dinner at the Lodge at Pebble Beach cost $75 or more?

Will bikini-clad secretaries peel grapes and massage the executives of 20th Century-Fox when they take over Pebble Beach Corp. and move to the Monterey Peninsula?

And finally, will Pebble Beach become "Disneyland North" when the bad guys from Hollywood take charge of one of the most beautiful hunks of real estate in the world?

These are some of the fears expressed by residents of Carmel, Pebble Beach and the rest of the Monterey Peninsula when they discuss the purchase of Pebble Beach Corp. for $72 million in cash by 20th Century-Fox Film Corp.

After meeting with Dennis Stanfill, chairman of the board and president of

Opinion

20th Century-Fox, I am convinced that many of the wild rumors are unfounded, but remain unconvinced that substantial changes will not be necessary.

After all, Fox is offering to cough up a cool $72 million for all the outstanding shares of Pebble Beach Corp. Invested in nice, safe, risk-free corporate bonds, the investment could return $6 or $7 million. Why pay so much for a company that earned only $6 million last year ($3.8 million after taxes)?

Stanfill, a former newspaperman, handled our direct questions deftly. The answers were sincere, logical and frank. And yet, since I'm a born skeptic, lingering doubts remain.

THE EXTRAORDINARY success of Star Wars, which garnered a whopping $200 million at movie box offices during 1977, quintupled Fox's profits from $10 million in 1976 to $50 million in 1977. Fearful perhaps that all that loose cash might attract a buyer even bigger than it is, Fox courted Pebble Beach Corp. (For the record, Fox's profits have been uneven: $10.7 million in 1976; $22 million in 1975; $10.9 million in 1974; and $10.7 million in 1973).

Stanfill stated that this roller-coaster profit picture was one of the factors that attracted them to a stable company like Pebble Beach Corp.

Fox expects to maintain a very low profile here. Nowhere, its executives maintain, will anyone ever read, "Pebble Beach Corp., a subsidiary of 20th Century-Fox Film Corp."

The existing management will be retained. "We have an employment continuation agreement with (PB president) Harry Holmes...we want this to be the last job Harry Holmes ever has," says Stanfill.

There will be no watchdog in Pebble Beach, "Harry Holmes will be our watchdog," Stanfill says. An as-yet undesignated supervising executive will be named to operate out of Los Angeles.

The Pebble Beach board has been asked to stay on, Stanfill says. Tom Taylor, chairman of Pebble Beach Corp., will be nominated to the board of 20th Century-Fox.

"We want to nurture this gem. We want to do better than what they (the present management) have been doing," Stanfill says.

HOW GOOD an investment will this be for Fox? "We expect to get a good return on our investment. We expect growth which we could not get with static investment in bonds," Stanfill told us. "This will not require any changes in the way the business has been run."

For the nine months that ended Sept. 30, Pebble Beach Corp. earned $4.2 million. The company should earn $5 or $6 million this year. That's a return of about 8.5 per cent on the $72 million investment. "A good return going in when you expect growth," Stanfill said.

He also said that the corporation had valuable assets "in place." That would include the Lodge at Pebble Beach, the golf courses and the real estate owned by Pebble Beach Corp. "It also has good earning assets in place in Wedron Silica," he said. The sand mining firm, a division of Pebble Beach Corp., contributed $2.8 million in profits before taxes in 1977.

Fox also expects to develop the hotel-golf course at Spanish Bay, a project that would be scrutinized by the Coastal Commission. The long-sought hotel originally was to be developed by Western International Hotels. It is small comfort that the project would be entirely in local hands...hands that reach to Hollywood.

I GUESS THE UNSPOKEN fear is that Fox will try to maximize the profits drawn from Pebble Beach Corp. If Star Wars III should prove to be a box office flop and profits plummet, would the company try to "milk" Pebble Beach for more profit?

After everyone has been lulled to sleep, will Fox sell off lots at fat profit regardless of the effect on the environment here?

Stockholders are hard taskmasters. Chairmen of boards must respond to the needs of the stockholders for profits. Will future chairmen be as sincere in their evaluation of the special quality of Pebble Beach?

In short, can we really rely on the goodwill and the largesse of a company owned and operated by strangers?

Only time will tell. In the meantime, we remain hopeful but skeptical.

View through a Grapestake Fence

by Ben

STILL WATERS may run deep, but a town that does not refresh itself, even in small ways, is like a body of stagnant water. Without an inlet, feeding fresh water and life, slime may cover the surface, maggots develop and mosquitoes hatch and buzz around, driving everyone crazy.

Isn't annexation our inlet?

A LEPRECHAUN is about to leave Carmel. A "gentleman of the old school" kind of leprechaun. Soft spoken, twinkley-eyed and honorable, though at times mischievous and commotion-causing. Carmel will not be the better for his leaving, but some of it will always be with him. I, for one, will miss him. Goodbye, James.

THE HUSTLE AND bustle of Christmas if full upon us. Friday and Saturday made summer holidays look like pikers. Every time I went past Ocean and Junipero and looked up the hill, it was solid with cars heading in. It almost looked like the world shouted, "Hey, everybody, hurry up! Christmas is coming and the only place you'll find it is in Carmel."

WENT SHOPPING with our little-ish one (she's too big now to be called little). She marched off, purse on arm ("with money, just like mama"), fully intentioned to spend, ("but not all of it"), into the land of pick-and-choose.

So satisfied was the expression when she had made her choice and went to the counter to pay for it herself. Two rolls of pennies, which mama had thoughtfully wrapped up, a dime and two "of the big ones." And she got a penny change to put back into the coin purse. "I earned some of it myself," she announced and marched out with the book she could read herself, totally content.

OUT ON MY afternoon ramble. I went by one grapestake gate that had three signs posted. They really said it all. The owner has to be a true Carmelite. The top one said "Beware of Dog." The middle one said "Beware of Cat," and the last but not least said, "Beware of Owner."

I WONDER WHAT the proposed design review board would have decided about the Tuck Box, Tor House or the Pine Inn if they were first presented now. The real Carmel-style house is board-and-bat. You know what that means: you take some boards and bat them together. If you plant enough trees and bushes to hide it completely, then you've got Carmel charm.

Sewer agency may expand into Carmel Valley

IN THE NOT too distant future, Carmel Sanitary District may be inspecting septic tanks, running package treatment plants and—in some cases—installing sewer lines as far east as Carmel Valley Village.

The district board of directors has faced the expansion issue to some degree in the preparation of its Areawide Facilities Plan. That report, expected by next June, will deal with the sanitation needs of Carmel, Carmel Highlands and Carmel Valley.

The immediate reason for new discussion on expanding the district's boundaries is the Carmel Valley Ranch project. The developer, Landmark Lands Co. of Oklahoma, intends to install an on-site package sewage treatment plant to serve the 500 homes and 100-unit resort lodge proposed for the Mid-Valley property.

State and county water quality officials require that some government entity run the package plant. And everybody's favorite candidate is the Carmel Sanitary District.

THE ONLY BARRIER is the fact the district has a ban on annexations and has yet to get involved with satellite sewage treatment plants.

But attorney Donald Freeman, who represents the district, said it would only take time and a change in the district's ordinances to expand into services beyond the central treatment plant by the mouth of the Carmel River.

While board President Charlotte Hurst said the sanitary district could be accused of "empire building" if it took on more territory and responsibilities, she said the public would benefit by having a single agency regulate sewage for the entire Carmel and Carmel Valley area.

She also said the district board is nearly unanimous in its willingness to take on the problem.

"I believe the mantle has fallen on us," Mrs. Hurst said.

Freeman said the major hurdle would be rewriting the district's operating ordinances to give it responsibility over all aspects of sewage disposal in the Carmel area.

IF THE DISTRICT takes in these new areas without guaranteeing them sewer line connections to a central treatment plant, it "changes the concept of what the district has been doing in the past," Freeman said.

Now, for example, there are no formal inspections of septic tanks after they are installed unless they break the law by leaking raw sewage onto the surface of the ground.

A revamped sanitary district could take over inspection of septic tanks as part of its service, Freeman said.

The district also could annex and manage package sewer plants for Valley developments without imposing an extra burden on the central treatment plant, Freeman said. In some cases, he envisions treating the sewage at the main plant and piping effluent back to the development for disposal on land.

Freeman already has met with Michael Johnson, executive director of the Local Agency Formation Commission, District Engineer Kevin Walsh and district Business Manager Bud Bigelow about the possibility of annexing all the territory up to Mid-Valley.

Johnson wants the idea to wait until the Areawide Facilities Plan is ready. Freeman said the job of rewriting the district's service mandate could take six months from the time he starts.

As far as Carmel Valley Ranch is concerned, the developer has not yet applied to the district for annexation. While that is the solution preferred by health officials, the package plant there also could be run by the Monterey County Public Works Department through a county service area or new sanitation district.

Ernie Vossler, president of Carmel Valley Ranch, the Landmark Lands subsidiary developing the property, said he will leave the choice of agencies "to my engineer, public works and the public health department."

"It makes no difference as long as it pleases the supervisors, the planning commission and staff and we fulfill our commitment," he said. "I'm not in any hurry."

Walsh has had an opportunity to review the design specifications for the plant. The district wants the power to approve or reject the design so it meets district standards.

Since the district expects to inherit the plant in the future—even if it does not manage it from the start—Freeman said, "We don't want somebody else's problems."

MAJOR JOHN H. Harrison (left), son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Harrison of Carmel, has received the third award of the Meritorious Service Medal at Brooks AFB, Tex. Harrison was cited for outstanding performance as chief of communications inspection at Kelly AFB, Texas. Harrison improved the quality and timeliness of U.S. Air Force security service communication, reduced expenditures in manpower and personnel and provided an outstanding means of evaluating command support. Col. William J. Vipraio, commander of the Air Force Communications Security Center, presented the award.

Motorist skids off Highway 1

A 27-year-old Carmel Valley woman was injured on Tuesday of last week when her car went off Highway 1 in Big Sur and rolled over.

Susan L. Salabarry was admitted to Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula following the accident at 3:10 a.m. She was released later in the week, according to a hospital spokesman.

A passenger with Miss Salabarry, Michael R. Zito, 20, of Carmel Valley, was not injured.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Miss Salabarry was driving south on Highway 1 one mile south of the Pfeiffer Canyon Bridge when she entered a curve, hit a slick spot in the road and skidded across the highway into an embankment. The car overturned, the CHP said.

Damage to the vehicle was total, according to the CHP.

A bed for $2

Skiing on $5 and $10 a day—a Carmel club's way

By BRUCE HOROVITZ

WHEN IT RAINS it snows. Nobody knows that better than the 100 members of the Carmel Ski Club.

The recent Carmel rains meant snow aplenty at the 16 ski areas located within 30 miles of the club-owned ski lodge. It is 20 miles north of Lake Tahoe in Truckee.

A Carmel charmer it isn't. But the lodge has 13 private bedrooms that can sleep as many as 40 people.

The 31-year-old ski club is scouting around for new members. But it'll cost you. Some 100 members pay $1,000 a year for use and shared ownership of the $120,000 lodge constructed six years ago. If the financial pinch is a bit much, associate memberships are available for $100 a year. That entitles you to use of the house, but not part ownership.

But you'd better schuss on down. Only 10 of the club's limited 30 associate memberships are available.

IF YOU'RE LOOKING for a swinging singles club, then look elsewhere. More than half of its members are married. Many of them bring their children along. Most nights everyone is in bed by 10 p.m., according to Sharon Raney, the admissions chairman. Miss Raney of Carmel, 37, is a computer programmer at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey.

"Very few of us even bother to go out at night. We've skied so hard during the day that we just can't," she explained.

Nine Carmel residents, most of them single, formed the club in 1947. There was plenty of partying back then. But families began to join up, and by the mid-1960s, it became family oriented. It remains that way today, although singles are invited to join, Miss Raney said.

Carmel residents no longer dominate the membership rolls. Only 20 per cent of its members live in Carmel and Carmel Valley. Many military personnel have joined up. It has members from every city on the Peninsula.

You have to be 21 to join. Children may not become members, but can use the facilities. Members pay $2 per night to stay in the lodge. Associate members and guests pay $4. Reservations should be made at least a week in advance. Community meals are served at the lodge for $2. Members may stay at the lodge as long as they want, according to Miss Raney.

WORK IS SHARED. All members must lend a hand in cooking and cleaning. "It's not the kind of place where you can spend a night without doing any work," she said. Members cooperatively clean the bathrooms, vacuum the floors and stack firewood.

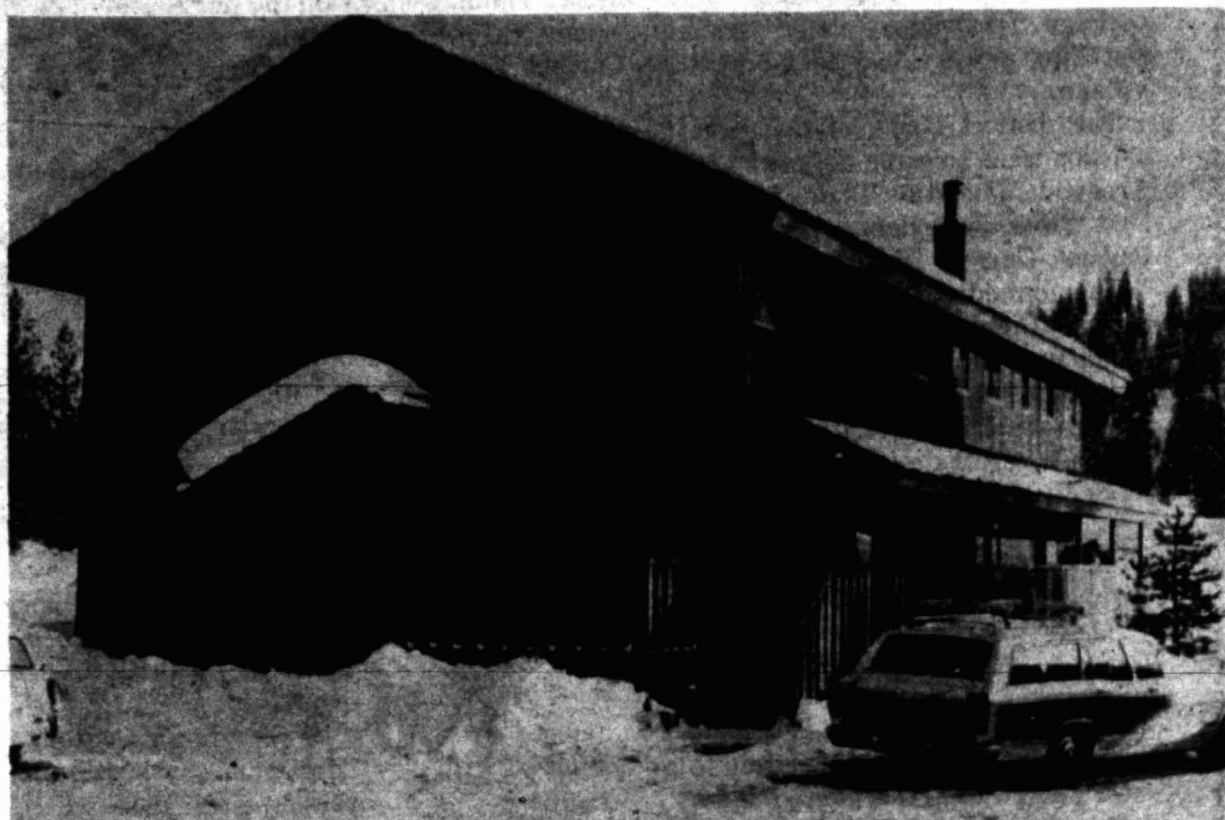

Club members were treated to a gourmet meal last winter when Charles Ober, the Carmel restaurateur, spent a weekend as a guest at the lodge. Members still are raving about the meal, according to Miss Raney.

The lodge has a living room, dining room, outdoor decks, bath facilities for men and women, a laundry room and a large kitchen. It is wood-paneled and carpeted throughout. Robert Stephenson, the chairman of the Carmel Planning Commission, designed it.

Corners were cut to save money when the lodge opened. The club saved about $5,000 by constructing its own beds. Partying types be forewarned, all of the beds are singles. Besides that, members have to bring their own bedding. Most members tote along sleeping bags.

You wouldn't call the members socialites, but neither are they wallflowers. Annual Christmas parties are scheduled at the lodge. One weekend each year the members "let their hair down," Miss Raney said. That is the one weekend when children are banned. "The champagne flows and we party," she said.

THE LODGE IS OPEN year-round.

THE CARMEL SKI CLUB owns this $120,000 ski lodge in the north Lake Tahoe area. The 13-room lodge can accommodate 40 people. It was designed by Robert Stephenson, chairman of the Carmel Planning Commission.

though use drops off in the summer. Water-skiing on Lake Tahoe and fishing on the Truckee River are favorite summertime activities.

A club "Snow Daddy" and "Chief Cook" are assigned during busy winter weekends. The "Snow Daddy" makes sure things don't get too rowdy. The "Chief Cook" orders the food and prepares the meals.

A few races are scheduled each year. The "Goof'n Goon Race" is an intra-club competition for beginners. There also is inter-club competition for advanced skiers.

A monthly newsletter, Snownotes, is distributed to all ski club members. The club schedules no ski swaps. "We tried that," but it didn't work," explained Miss Raney. Discounts at nearby ski resorts are not available through the club. The most popular resort near the lodge is Alpine Meadows.

If you're worried about breaking a leg, be comforted. The lodge is just one mile from the local hospital in Truckee. Five of the club members belong to the National Ski Patrol. They are trained in first aid.

For more information, contact Miss Raney evenings at 624-7971. Before the season is over, most club members get to know each other. "It's hard to be a recluse in our club. But that's the way we like it," she said.

Annexation process begins

had been imposed by the board of supervisors and did not originate with the residents of the area.

He drew the loudest cheers of the night when he declared it is "quite contrary for the force of logic to determine the feelings of people."

SUPERVISOR DUSAN Petrovic of King City agreed with Herrick when he joined Marina Mayor Frank Vinyard in voting against the annexation bid.

"That is the trouble when the government wants to play Big Brother and tell you what is good for you," he said. "If you wanted annexation, you would have come to us. You didn't and we have no business starting it."

Supervisor Michal Moore voted along with John Bean of Seaside and Hibino to send the process to the next step: a protest hearing and then possible election.

He said it is the duty of government officials to take the lead times, rather than waiting for a problem to develop and then find a solution.

Attorneys Don Freeman of Carmel Woods and Francis "Skip" Lloyd of Hatton Fields argued in favor of annexation.

Freeman said residents around Carmel would benefit by being able to vote for city councilmen or serve on the Carmel council themselves.

Rod Holmgren of Hatton Fields said he would rather vote for five councilmen than one county supervisor.

"I'd like to have more of a say on what goes on in my own backyard," he said. "I'd like to have some influence on growth management of downtown Carmel."

"If we don't like the way they handle problems in Carmel, if we're in the city we can elect a city council."

MANY OPPONENTS expressed fears for the future of County Service Area 43, the fire district which now serves the unincorporated areas up for annexation.

CSA 43 advisory committee member James Neill presented a petition with 600 signatures opposed to the annexation. Those signatures came from throughout the service area, which includes territory not under discussion for annexation.

LAFCO voted unanimously for a non-binding resolution asking that Carmel contract with CSA 43 to provide fire protection in any areas it annexes. This would stave off a sudden cut in fire district tax revenues.

The commission also voted to request that Carmel keep the existing zoning codes in annexed areas, although commission attorney Bill Haines said it has no authority to require Carmel to comply.

Christmas in Carmel

Lyrics for the community sing-along scheduled Saturday at 3 p.m. in Sunset Theater in Carmel.

Deck the Halls

Deck the hall with boughs of holly
 Fa la la la la, la la la la.
 'Tis the season to be jolly,
 Fa la la la la, la la la la.
 Don we now our gay apparel, Fa...
 Troll the ancient Yuletide carol, Fa...
 Fast away the old year passes, Fa...
 Hail the new, ye lads and lasses, Fa...
 Sing we joyous all together, Fa...
 Heedless of the wind and weather, Fa...

Deck the Halls--Spanish

White Christmas

I'm dreaming of a White Christmas
 Just like the ones I used to know
 Where the treetops glisten
 And children listen
 To hear sleigh bells in the snow.
 I'm dreaming of a White Christmas
 With every Christmas card I write.
 May your days be merry and bright,
 And may all your Christmases be white.

White Christmas--French

Oh! quand j'entends chanter Noël
 J'aime à revoir mes joies d'enfant:
 Le sapin scintillant,
 La neige d'argent,
 Noël! mon beau rêve blanc.
 Oh! quand j'entends sonner au ciel
 L'heure où le bon vieillard descend
 Je revois tes yeux clairs, maman,
 Et je songe à d'autres Noël blancs.

I Saw Three Ships

I saw three ships come sailing in,
On Christmas Day, on Christmas Day;
I saw three ships come sailing in,
On Christmas Day in the morning.
And what was in those ships all three,
On Christmas Day, on Christmas Day;
And what was in those ships all three,
On Christmas Day in the morning.
The Virgin Mary and Christ were there
On Christmas Day, on Christmas Day;
The Virgin Mary and Christ were there
On Christmas Day in the morning.
Then let us all rejoice again
On Christmas Day, on Christmas Day;
Then let us all rejoice again,
On Christmas Day in the morning.

Silent Night

Silent night, holy night,
All is calm, all is bright,
Round yon Virgin Mother and Child
Holy Infant, so tender and mild
Sleep in heavenly peace,
Sleep in heavenly peace.

Silent night, holy night,
Shepherds quake at the sight;
Glories stream from heaven afar,
Heavenly hosts sing, Alleluia,
Christ, the Savior, is born,
Christ, the Savior, is born.

Silent night, holy night,
Son of God, love's pure light,
Radiant beams from Thy holy face,
With the dawn of redeeming grace,
Jesus, Lord, at Thy birth,
Jesus, Lord, at Thy birth.

Silent Night--German

Stille nacht, heilige nacht
Alles schläft, einsam wacht
Nur das traute, hoch heilige Paar
Holder Knabe im lockigen Haar,
Schlaf in himmlischer Ruh
Schlaf in himmlischer Ruh.

Stille nacht, heil ge nacht,
Hirten erst kund gemacht,
Durch der Engel Halleluja
Tönt es laut von fern und nah
Christ der Retter ist da,
Christ der Retter ist da.

Stille nacht, heilige nacht.
Gottes Sohn, o wie lacht
Lieb' aus deinem göttlichen Mund
Da uns schlägt die rettende Stund',
Christ, in deiner Geburt,
Christ, in deiner Geburt.

Silent Night--Spanish

Noche de paz, noche de amor
Todo duerme en derredor
Entre los astros que esparcen su luz
Bella anunciando al ninito Jesus,
Brilla lo estrella de paz,
Brilla la estrella de paz.

Noche de paz, noche de amor
Oye humilde el fiel pastor,
Coros celestes que anuncian salud
Gracias y glorias en gran plenitu
Por nuestro buen Redentor
Por nuestro buen Redentor.

Noche de paz, noche de amor,
Ved que bello resplandor
Luce en el rostro del niño Jesus
En el pesebre, del mundo la Luz,
Astro de eterno fulgor,
Astro de eterno fulgor.

Silent Night--French

Douce nuit! Sainte nuit!
Dans le ciel l'astre luit;
Dans les champs tout repose en paix,
Mais soudain dans l'air pur et frais
Le brillant choeur des anges
Aux bergers apparaît.

Douce nuit! Sainte nuit!
Les bergers sont instruits:
Confiants dans la voix des cieux,
Ils s'en vont adorer leur Dieu;
Et Jésus, en échange,
Leur sourit radieux.

O nuit d'espoir! Sainte nuit!
L'espérance a reluit;
Le Sauveur de la terre est né,
C'est à nous que Dieu l'a donné.
Célébrons ses louanges;
Gloire au Verbe Incarné!

Silent Night--Swedish

Stilla natt, heliga natt!
Allt är frid, stjärnan blid
skiner på barnet i stallets strå och de vakande fromma två.
Kristus till jorden är kommen.
Oss är en Frälsare född.

Stora stund, heliga stund!
Anglars här slår sin rund kring de vaktande herdars hjord, rymden ljuder av glädjens ord:
Kristus till jorden är kommen.
Eder är Frälsaren född.

Stilla natt, heliga natt!
Mörkret flyr, dagen gryr.
Räddningstimman för världen slår.
nu begynner vårt jubelår.
Kristus till jorden är kommen.
Oss är en Frälsare född.

Jingle Bells

Dashing through the snow
In a one horse open sleigh,
O'er the fields we go,
Laughing all the way;
Bells on bobtail ring,
Making spirits bright;
What fun it is to ride and sing
A sleighing song tonight!

Jingle Bells, Jingle Bells,
Jingle all the way!
Oh, what fun it is to ride
In a one-horse open sleigh!

A day or two ago
I thought I'd take a ride,
And soon Miss Fannie Bright
Was seated by my side,
The horse was lean and lank,
Misfortune seemed his lot,
He got into a drifted bank,
And we, we got upsot.
(Repeat chorus)

Jingle Bells--French

Sur le long chemin
Tout blanc de neige blanche
Un vieux monsieur s'avance
Avec sa canne dans la main
Et tout là-haut le vent
Qui siffle dans les branches
Lui souffle la romance
Qu'il chantait petit enfant. Oh!

Vive le vent! Vive le vent!
Vive le vent d'hiver!
Qui s'en va sifflant, soufflant
Dans les grands sapins verts. Oh!
Vive le temps! Vive le temps!
Vive le temps d'hiver!
Boulé de neige et Jour de l'An
Et Bonne Année, grand'mère.

Et le vieux monsieur
Descend vers le village
C'est l'heure où tout est sage
Et l'ombre danse au coin du feu
Mais dans chaque maison
Flotte un air de fête
Partout la table est prête
Et l'on entend la même chanson.

O Come All Ye Faithful

O come, let us adore Him,
O come, let us adore Him, Christ
the Lord.

Sing, choirs of angels,
Sing in exultation,
Sing, all ye citizens of heaven above;
Glory to God in the highest.
O come let us...

Yes, Lord, we greet Thee,
Born this happy morning,
Jesus to Thee be glory given;
Word of the Father now in flesh appearing.
O come let us...

Ora, Virgo, pro nobis,
Pro nobis ora, in mortishora,
Ora, ora pro nobis.

Angels We Heard on High

Angels we have heard on high,
Sweetly singing o'er the plains.
And the mountains in reply,
Echoing their joyous strains.

Gloria in excelsis Deo
Gloria in excelsis Deo.

Shepherds, why this jubilee?
Why your joyous strains prolong?
What the gladsome tidings be,
Which inspire your heavenly song?
(repeat Gloria...)

Come, to Bethlehem, and see
Him whose birth the angels sing;
Come, adore on bended knee,
Christ, the Lord, the newborn King.
(repeat Gloria...)

Angels We Heard on High--French

Les anges dans nos campagnes
Ont entonné l'hymne descieux;
Et l'écho de nos montagnes
Redit ce chant si lodeux
(Gloria...)

Bergers, quittez vos retraites;
Unissez-vous à nos concerts;
Répétez sur vos musettes
Ce chant qui vibre dans les airs;
(Gloria...)

Apprenez tous la naissance
D'un Roi sauveur en Israël;
Que dans sa reconnaissance,
La terre change avec le ciel;
(Gloria...)

Away in a Manger

Away in a manger, no crib for a bed,
The little Lord Jesus laid down his sweet head,
The stars in the sky looked down where
He lay,
The little Lord Jesus asleep on the hay.

The cattle are lowing, the poor Baby wakes,
But little Lord Jesus no crying He makes,
I love Thee Lord Jesus look down from the sky,
And stay by my cradle till morning is nigh.

Be near me, Lord Jesus, I ask Thee to stay
Close by me forever, and love me, I pray, Bless all the dear children in Thy tender care
And take us to heaven, to live with Thee
there.

Joy to the World

Joy to the world, the Lord has come,
Let earth receive her King;
Let every heart prepare him room
And heaven and nature sing,
And heaven and nature sing,
And heaven, and heaven and nature sing.

He rules the world with truth and grace,
And makes the nation prove
The glories of His righteousness
And wonders of His love,
And wonders of His love,
And wonders, and wonders of His love.

We Wish You a Merry Christmas

We wish you a Merry Christmas
We wish you a Merry Christmas
We wish you a merry Christmas
And a happy New Year.

Good tidings to you wherever you are
Good tidings for Christmas and a Happy
NEW Year.

We wish you a Merry Christmas,
We wish you a Merry Christmas,
We wish you a Merry Christmas,
And a Happy New Year!

Noodle dough kneaders

TOTS AT THE Mid-Carmel Valley Parent Cooperative Nursery School became noodle dough kneaders last week as they prepared the noodle soup for lunch. These 4-year-olds, Tim Lewis of Carmel and Jeannine Trudeau of Carmel Valley, were up to their elbows in the project. So were many others, as the adults found out later when the youngsters lined up at the wash basin. Parents were invited to the lunch. The nursery school is at Carmelo School. (Carolyn Rice photo)

Teen-aged trio injured in Highlands car crash

Three Carmel teen-agers were injured last Saturday when their car went off the road in the Carmel Highlands and struck an oak tree.

Mayor says he's ready to preside

Carmel Mayor Gunnar Norberg, stricken by a heart attack several weeks ago, said he probably will preside at the Carmel City Council meeting scheduled next Monday at 8 p.m. at City Hall.

Norberg is scheduled to be examined by his physician Friday. The results of the examination will determine if he attends the meeting, Norberg said Monday afternoon. He also was scheduled to make an appearance Saturday at the "Christmas in Carmel" sing-along at Sunset Center.

The mayor returned to his business, Norberg Travel Service, on Monday. He said he is only taking on "un-stressful" duties at work.

Norberg has spent the last month at home recuperating from the heart attack he suffered in October.

The driver, Vaughn Andrew Parsons, 19, and his two passengers, Jennifer Sue Thompson, 15, and Linda McKay, 15, suffered minor injuries. The mishap occurred at 12:30 a.m.

Miss Thompson was treated and released from Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. Parsons required no medical attention and Miss McKay told officers she would see her dentist for treatment.

According to the CHP, Parsons was driving northbound on Mount Devon Road near Boyd Way when his car went out of control on a curve and struck the roadside tree.

The mishap occurred almost two years after a tragic accident where Parsons was the driver. In that instance, three teen-agers were killed and a fourth injured on Aguajito Road when his car went off the road and struck a telephone pole roadside.

Local attorney's Russian adventure

Ice cream 'da,' but airline stewardesses 'nyet'

By KEN PETERSON

THE NEWEST HOTELS and apartment buildings already are falling apart.

Russians will buy the shirt off your back right on the street.

You can't buy a copy of the Soviet criminal code and Carmel attorney Don Freeman was forcibly ejected from one bookstore for trying.

But the bread and ice cream are delicious, the people friendly and travel costs cheap. All in all, Freeman is ready to go back to the Soviet Union for a second visit as soon as possible.

Freeman and his wife, Ruth, spent two weeks in November touring some of the major cities there and getting an inside look at the Soviet legal system.

They found consumer goods to be in short supply and of low quality and Soviet citizens promised civil rights they cannot, in practice, exercise.

Freeman said Soviet citizens know little about the United States, but added that a recurring theme in their conversations is a desire to visit here.

"They said to me, 'We love our country but we want to see your country and then make a choice of where to live,'" he said.

Many Russians speak English and have the impression everyone in America carries a gun and that people here are always shooting at each other, Freeman said.

"One man told me if he visited America, the first thing he would do is buy a gun to protect himself from the Mafia," Freeman said.

But it is difficult for a Russian to get a visa. While in theory it may take only three or six months to process an exit visa, complications arise because Soviet citizens must buy foreign currency from their government. Because the Soviet Union first must buy other currencies with gold, it simply refuses to do so for the average citizen.

TOURISM INSIDE Russia is encouraged because few people there find it possible to travel outside the country, Freeman said.

Air travel lacks a few of the amenities Americans are used to, though.

Freeman said the stewardesses on domestic flights are a separate breed from the "showcase ladies" on the Washington-Moscow flight flown by Aeroflot, the national airline.

"Inside the country, they're just disastrous as far as looks," he said. The average Russian stewardess must tip the scales at 200 to 250 pounds, he said.

Day-to-day life is not easy for people in Russia either, he said. In grocery stores, "the food is so pathetic. There may be cabbage; some potatoes and carrots you would throw away."

Freeman attributes it on the short Soviet growing season there.

The American lawyers and their families on his tour lived like kings, Freeman said.

"We were treated literally like royalty," he said. "I was amazed. We had three of the best meals you could eat every day. There was cheese at every meal and wine, champagne and vodka. We had beef and fish. But it's not what the Russians eat."

Consumer goods are in short supply.

"There is nothing in Russia anyone would want," Freeman said. "The stuff is just super junk. Every store is alike; the prices are the same. It's like a Woolworth's only Woolworth's has better quality."

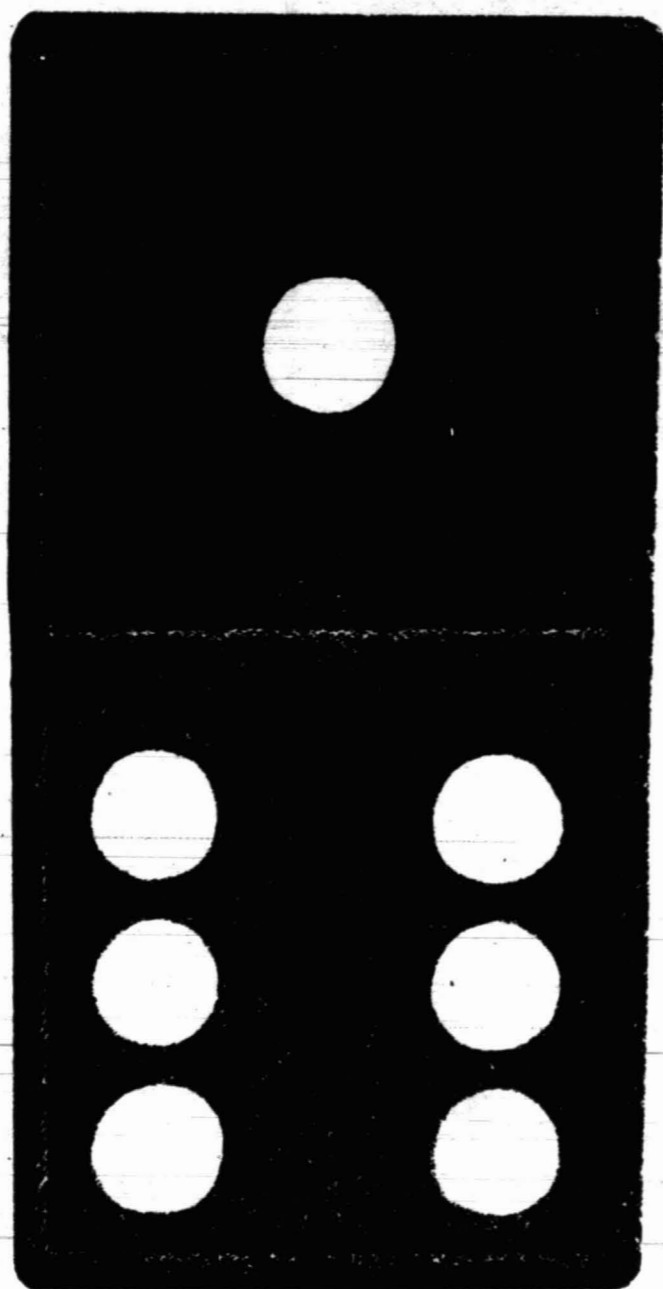

Russians apparently think so, too, because Freeman sold one pair of Levi blue jeans for $150. Another member of his touring party out for a stroll sold a used pair of Adidas tennis shoes for almost $100 and walked back to the hotel barefoot.

FREEMAN SAID THE technology that reaches consumers is "just terrible. Not one thing is equivalent to the United States." The country is "like walking back in a time capsule 30 or 40 years," he said.

As the Russians explained it, the situation grew out of necessity. Having lost a third to a half of their population during both the Revolution of 1917 and World War II, the Soviets concentrated on industrial rather than consumer technology to rebuild the country.

Freeman said this pragmatism carries over into civil liberties.

CARMEL ATTORNEY Don Freeman shows off some of the souvenirs he brought back from a two-week trip to the Soviet Union in November. Freeman said all Soviet stores offer essentially the same merchandise at the same prices

FREEMAN TRIED to find out what is and is not legal in the Soviet Union by picking up a copy of the nation's criminal code. But even with a letter from one of the sponsoring Soviet professors authorizing him to buy a copy of the code, he couldn't get one.

Freeman said he spent one day in eight different book stores trying to buy the book.

"I was physically ejected from one store," Freeman said. "The others said 'Nyet, nyet' when I showed them the letter."

Eventually, he got an old copy through a tour guide in Kiev. He plans to have it translated because "it could be poetry as far as I can tell."

Freeman found no restrictions on his wandering about in the cities he visited. He said the Russian people he talked to were open in their discussions with him.

Still, he said, "I found nothing that would make me want to live there."

He believes the Soviet Union is "gearing up" for the 1980 Olympics and bending over backward to make foreign tourists comfortable.

In addition to the good food, his tour included free tickets to theater, opera, concerts, museums and sporting events. Round-trip air fare from Washington, D.C., cost $567 and his room, board and entertainment expenses for two weeks totaled $400.

For all his critical comments, Freeman enjoyed the trip and would like to go back again, either before or after the Olympic crowds flood the country.

presents ...

a whimsical bestiary (in ceramic) by
LOET VANDERVEEN

Loet Vanderveen has the gift of seeing things more sharply than most of us. Translated into art, this talent permits him to strip away much of the protective covering living creatures assume and capture their innate qualities. Happily, Vanderveen brings a sense of humor and a generous nature to his work that enables him to sculpt with affection as well as with tongue in cheek.

Long known for his delightful poses of all manner of homo sapiens in ceramic and bronze, Vanderveen has most recently turned his attention to the animal kingdom.

Our haughty llama and imperturbable pelican belong to a menagerie of ceramic creatures that includes whale, horse, raccoon and other charmers to romp across your lawn or stand guard at your door or hearth.

A resident of the Big Sur for the last 15 years, Mr. Vanderveen was born in Holland and served in the RAF during World War II. He started his creative career as a fashion designer in Zurich, London and New York. He studied with Fong Chow, artist and curator of the Far Eastern Department of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and became knowledgeable in ceramics and glaze chemistry. Many of his architectural sculptures were commissioned by leading banks, churches and colleges in California and Nebraska. His work has also been exhibited at museums and galleries from New York to California and with private collectors.

David is proud to offer these limited edition pieces by this perceptive artist.

Lamplight

by Jon Wolfard

Candlelight has long been considered the softest, most flattering, most romantic light, but we believe that our beautifully designed, hand-crafted glass oil lamps make candles look pale by comparison.

Designer Jon Wolfard created these lovely lamps which are handblown of heat resistant glass at the Wolfard Glassblowing Co. in Santa Rosa. Although delicate in appearance, they have no moving parts and can actually be cleaned in the dishwasher.

The lamps use clean-burning Nowell's Lamp Oil, but any good quality oil, including scented or colored types, may be used. The oil is added through an opening in the side of the lamp, aided by a separate funnel.

Four sizes -- 6-inch, 9-inch, 12-inch and 15-inch -- can be used singly or in groups indoors or on the patio. The smallest lamp will burn for 17 hours, the largest for an incredible 73 hours on its 9-ounce fuel capacity.

Soft, flattering, romantic light that is smokeless, dripless, reusable and beautiful ... attractively priced from $20-$40.

116 countries down, seven to go

Globe-trotting golfer George Salter still not done

By KEN PETERSON

GEORGE SALTER of Carmel Valley has been playing golf for 66 of his 82 years. He has shot rounds from Alaska to Australia, from Tahiti to Trinidad. In the course of his globe-trotting adventures, he also has earned a place for himself in the Guinness Book of World Records: George Salter, Most Peripatetic Golfer, who has played at least one round in 116 countries.

One hundred and sixteen? That's right. And he has journeyed to all but three of those countries since he retired as a waterworks designer in Chicago at 68.

Salter got started on his hobby in a mild way.

"I had played in most states before I retired," he said. "In 1964 to 1966, I toured the United States to finish the rest of the states."

He completed No. 50 in Alaska on what he calls the worst course he ever played. It was a nine-hole, par-three course "without a blade of grass on it," Salter said. The fairways were covered with small stones from golf mining tailings and the sand traps were filled with gravel.

Salter picked up steam in his globe-girdling golf jaunts beginning in 1967. For the next seven years, he played in a minimum of 10 countries a year. His busiest year came in 1973, when he played in 24 nations in the Caribbean and South Pacific.

He first learned the game from his grandfather and uncle while he was in high school in Nebraska. That was in 1912. Salter later played with the University of Nebraska golf team, although he confesses, "I never played too good a game of golf."

He remained an active amateur golfer during his working years, playing 272 courses in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

WITH RETIREMENT, remarriage and a move to Hacienda Carmel in Carmel Valley, Salter turned the avocation into almost a full-time career.

His wife, Arlene, enjoys traveling around the world although she is not a golfer. The couple has made three trips around the globe and nine shorter regional tours.

"We've seen most of the sights of the world," he said. "There are very few outstanding tourist sights we haven't seen."

Salter said he still has two places on his "must see" list: the Great Wall of China and Angel Falls in Venezuela. He expects to get to them even though he already has visited Venezuela and China and they have no golf courses.

As a general rule, "I don't visit countries that don't have courses," Salter said.

He figures there are only about seven or eight countries left where he hasn't played golf. Some are in western Africa, the rest in the Arab gulf states. He said he hopes to play on "at least five of them."

There are, of course, countries he hasn't visited, like the Soviet Union, Poland and Hungary. But those nations have no golf courses.

WHEN HE'S AT home, Salter plays at least three rounds of golf a week, usually at his home course, Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. Since he moved to California with Arlene in 1964, he has played 1,551 rounds there. Those include three rounds where he scored a hole-in-one—and each time on a different hole. Salter has four aces in his lifetime, all of them since he came west.

He refuses to use a golf cart, walking every step of each round. And he has the trim body of a man 20 years his junior.

Salter also has an affinity for finding lost golf balls: he invariably comes home with

Carmel Pine Cone

Section II Arts & Leisure

two or three more than he started with. His wife makes decoupage boxes in the craft center at Hacienda Carmel and their den is dotted with the boxes, filled to the brim with golf balls.

Salter said he hopes to travel a time or two more to round out the last few countries whose golf courses have not felt his feet or the stroke of his clubs. He's running out of courses at about the right time. His wife, Salter related, has already told him, "Honey, I've seen all the sights I want to see."

EVEN STAYING in Carmel Valley, Salter has one golfing goal left. He wants to "shoot his age," have a round of golf where his score totals his years.

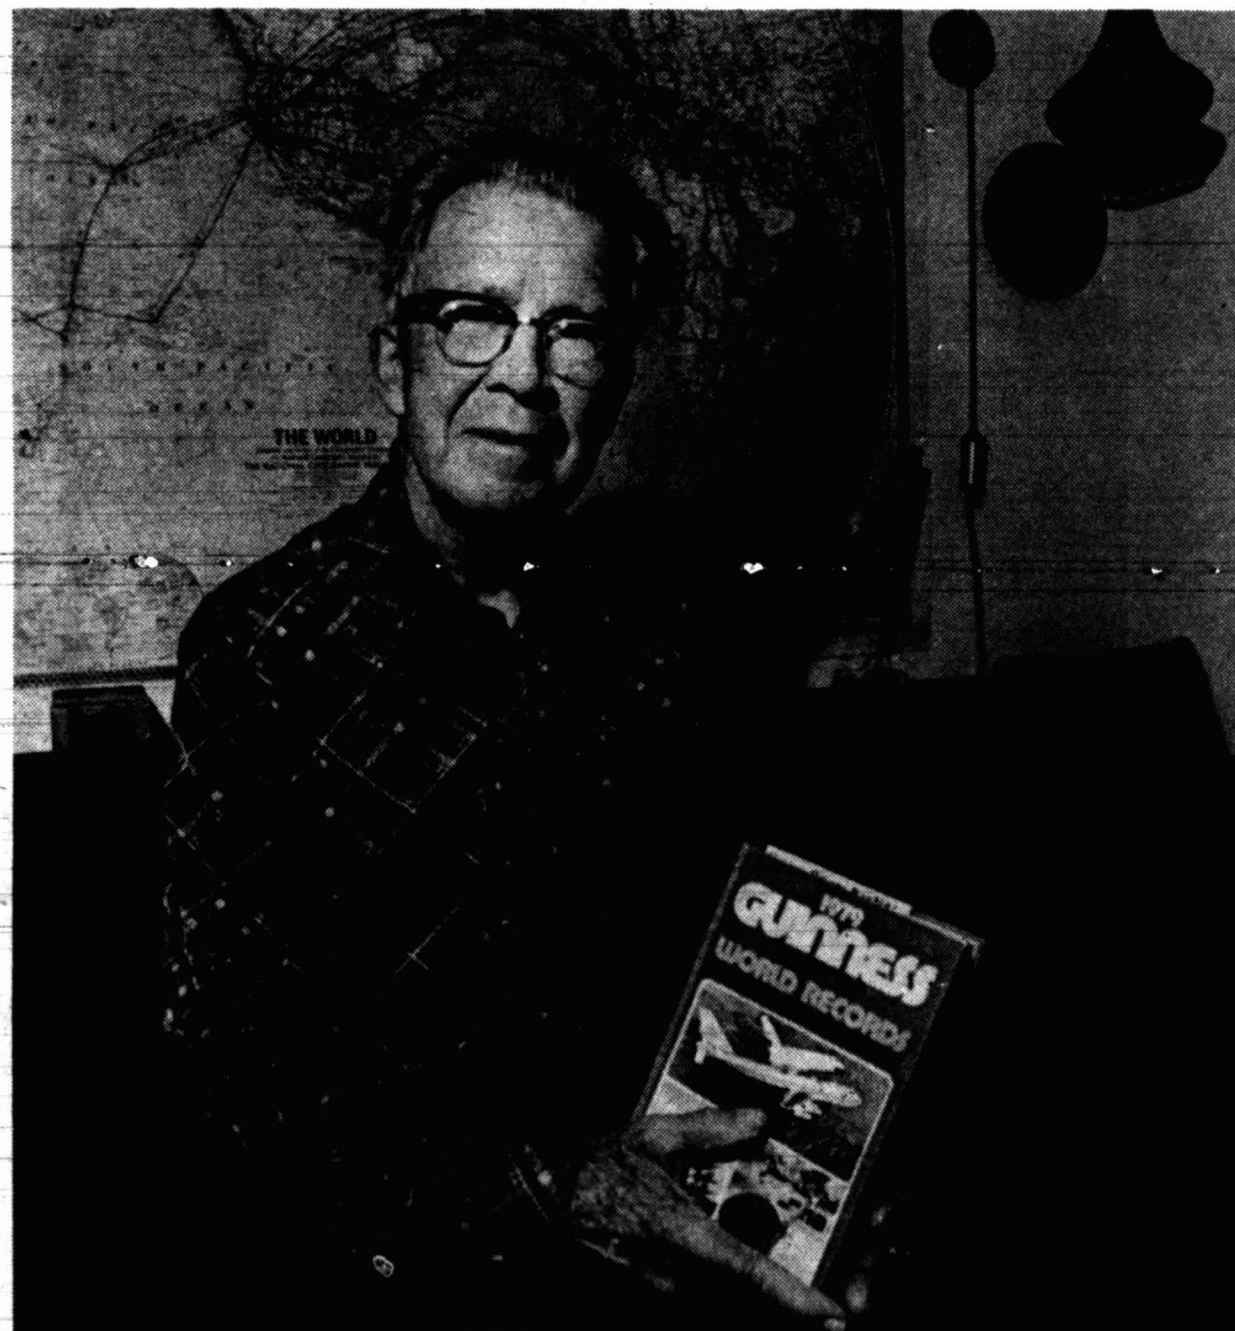

A 19-handicap golfer who routinely shoots in the mid- to upper-80s, Salter figures this will happen by 1982 or 1983.

For a man who has played 562 different courses in 116 countries, it should be a snap.

GEORGE SALTER watches his putt hang on the lip of the cup at Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. Salter tries to play three rounds a week when he is not off on a globe-girdling golf tour. (Kirk McClelland photos)

PLAYING GOLF IN 116 countries has earned George Salter of Carmel Valley a place in the 1979 "Guinness Book of World Records." The map behind Salter shows the trips he has taken with his wife sightseeing and giving him a chance to play golf in virtually every nation that has a course.

Lombard sculpture at Edgewater

Sculpture by Carmel artist Edwin H. Lombard is currently on exhibit at Edgewater Galleries, 15 Prescott Ave. at Cannery Row, Monterey. Lombard works in hardwoods, including rare South American woods, sandstone, alabaster and marble.

The Oriental feeling in many of his works is attributable to the years spent in the East, especially in Japan, where his father taught at the University of Doshisha, Kyoto.

Lombard received his bachelor's degree from Oberlin College and his master's degree from Columbia University. His doctorate in speech and drama is from Cornell University. Dr. Lombard taught theater arts for 26 years, most recently as professor with the California State University.

During these years, he continued to sculpt and exhibit widely on the West Coast. Among his numerous awards is the San Francisco trophy for best of show at the 1971 Monterey County Fair.

Edgewater Galleries are open 10 a.m.-10 p.m. daily. For further information, phone 372-1626.

"MOTHER'S DAY" is an acrylic by Albert Clymer which is included in a show of his work at the S.F.B. Morse Gallery at Robert Louis Stevenson School, Pebble Beach, Dec. 3-10.

Charlotte Britton, well-known California watercolorist, will share the exhibit.

Two artists featured at Stevenson School; champagne reception, preview Sunday

The Golden State provides the inspiration for Albert Clymer and Charlotte Britton, two artists whose works will be exhibited in the S.F.B. Morse Gallery of Robert Louis Stevenson School, Pebble Beach. A champagne reception and artists' preview Sunday, Dec. 3, 4-6 p.m., will open the show, which will remain on view through Dec. 10.

Clymer deals primarily with the California coastline and rich farmland, although his recent travels to Hong Kong, France, Italy and Greece have broadened his interpretation in subject and style. He paints in strong, linear shapes and colors that vibrate from subtle neutral tones to searing reds and oranges, rich browns and icy blues.

Clymer is listed in Who's Who in American Art and has had numerous exhibits throughout the West.

The current president of the West Coast Watercolor Society, Charlotte Britton, paints in a brisk, dynamic style that varies large, luminously transparent areas with bright dashes of solid color.

Also associated with the Society of Western Artists, of which she is past vice president, and the American Watercolor Society, Miss Britton's works captures the California landscape.

The RLS String Quartet will perform at the preview/reception.

Regular gallery hours are 3:30-5 p.m. daily. The private school campus is on Forest Lake Road, off 17 Mile Drive in Pebble Beach. For additional information, phone 624-1257.

Small paintings for Christmas at Zantman

Small Paintings for Christmas, a popular annual exhibit, will open Saturday, Dec. 2, 6-9 p.m., with a cocktail preview at Zantman Art Galleries, Sixth and Mission, Carmel. Everyone is welcome.

Designed with Christmas gift giving in mind, the exhibit includes a wide variety of delightful small paintings by artists whose work is shown at Zantman Galleries throughout the year.

Frank Ashley captures the exciting world of the "Sport of Kinds" on race courses in England, France and the United States, as well as equestrian events of international scope. His work is unmistakable for its strength, style and keen observation of human nature.

Gunnar Anderson's work is especially appropriate for Christmas, since his favorite subjects are children at play, at rest, in mischief or pensive moments.

Similarly, Diane Wolcott's small paintings (her works rarely exceed 11 x 14 inches any time of year) unfold an endless saga of children at play, often in the company of habited nuns. On sleigh rides or ice skating, picking flowers or white-washing a fence, her little primitive paintings are charming and joyful.

Max Savy lives in the south of France, from whence he sallies forth to paint the Basque country, its umbrella pines, vineyards, warm-toned seasons and simple peasants. His work is warm, realistic and "naive" in a sophisticated way.

Another young French artist is Jeanne Perrin, who paints bouquets of flowers in a finely detailed realistic technique and bright-but-delicate colors. Her heavy glazing creates an enamel-like effect.

Etchings by Michael Coleman are a new offering from this talented young artist, who usually paints romantic landscapes of the Great Plains in the style of the late 19th century Hudson River School.

Other artists whose work will be shown are R. A. Benson, Guy Cambier, Georges Damin, Dorothy Fitzgerald, Frank Hamilton, Shirley Howe, Bradford Johnson, Phyllis Londraville, Prunella, Sandy Scott, Norma Souza, Gene Speck, Loran Speck and Larry Yocum.

For additional information, phone the galleries, 624-8314.

Bookworks features unity of man, animals in Stolpe art

The unity of animals and man are expressed through etchings, lithographs and watercolor drawings by Daniel Owen Stolpe, a Caucasian artist who has lived and traveled extensively with Native Americans. Stolpe, who now lives in Santa Cruz, will be at the Bookworks, 198 Country Club Gate Center at David Ave., Pacific Grove, for a reception to open his month-long exhibit Saturday, Dec. 2 from 2-5 p.m.

Fur, feathers, horns and hooves merge constantly in his art. "The spirit is behind what you see. Man lives symbolically. His gut level life exists in spite of the fashion for the day. Reverence for the natural energies are without time and are a source for my art," he says. "My art is a journey into a sleeping part of us all, Indian and white."

Stolpe spent two years with the Swinomish people at the mouth of the Skagit River in Washington. His stay deepened his understanding and fascination with the totems and spirits of the Northwest. The eagle, bear, elk and salmon have become predominant motifs in his work.

His experiences with the Plains people—Sioux, Shoshone and Arapaho—have broadened his vision of the legendary times when the coyote began the drama of life with the creation of mountains, lakes, plains and rivers and when people were animals.

He asks the viewer to look within himself to tap the "intuitive impulses of our own nature." His work suggests that man's salvation lies not as predator but through the grace of his kinship with all living things.

Stolpe has created a series on endangered species for the Smithsonian Magazine; graphics for Houghton-Mifflin, Random House and the Atlantic Monthly and World Mint Associates.

Sunset Views: Early theater in California was exuberant

By RICHARD TYLER
Director, Sunset Community and Cultural Center

THE RECORD OF Federal Theaters in California, Washington, Oregon and Colorado is understandable in the light of the history of a theater more informal and more flamboyant than that of the East. The variety show was the backbone of western show business and drama was in the thick of things. In a day when theaters, like homes, clothes, people, and everything else, tend to reflect less and less of their regions, it is surprising that so much of the flavor of California's early stage was apparent in Federal Theaters west of the Mississippi. They were more free and easy, more exuberant and gusty.

In Los Angeles, the Screen Guild Committee felt that in spite of the opposition of the Motion Picture Herald there was no real competition with the movies. In fact, they hoped that theaters would be opened in Los Angeles though they were not too optimistic as to whether anyone would ever go to them. On New Year's Eve 1935, Los Angeles opened the first Federal Theater show in the United States for which admission was charged. Judging by the press, which for the next year fills 10 volumes, the productions increasingly merited attention. School boards, school teachers, and parents wrote the government saying that high school students were for the first time getting a sense of spoken drama. It was about this program that the chief of police of Los Angeles wrote the Washington office:

"The Los Angeles Police Department has been carrying on a crime prevention program the past 15 months in its efforts to reduce juvenile delinquency throughout our city...We want you to know that playing a big part in this prevention work is the Federal Theater Project of Los Angeles which has cooperated with us in putting on shows at the various high schools each Friday night...We want to go on record at this time asking for its continuation as any decrease...would directly hinder us in our efforts to reduce delinquency."

Despite press magnification of petty squabbles on the project, intensive work continued during the next year over 100 productions being turned out in 1937.

Eugene O'Neill, who at that time was living in California, was particularly pleased with the project. "This theater is becoming a great force in the life of American writers and in the history of our stage," he said. "It has a tonic effect on me to think of my own plays being done in places where without Federal Theater they would most certainly never have been produced."

IT WAS IN California that the first opposition to any governmental censorship was acknowledged in the Federal Theater projects. Actors' Equity, the Screen Actors Guild, Variety, together with many organizations and individuals, protested; and regional directors of all the arts throughout the country united to form a formidable body of opinion against the autocratic handling of the arts in California and against censorship. There was strong argument against allowing state administrators who knew nothing about performance and hence had a political and not an artistic basis for selection to have any participation in the programming of the theaters. It took some time to come to an understanding that the national directors were to be left in artistic control of program and personnel. This incident is important because Federal Theater experiences in regard to censorship had an obvious bearing on any future effort to start a theater under state or national subsidy. The right to choose plays was the core of Federal Theater and any group subsidizing artists must realize the choice of material must lie with the creative body.

During the last two years of Federal Theater, there was increasing discussion in Washington of the possibility of permanence in the government's relation to the arts. A resolution providing for the "establishment of an executive department to be known as the Department of Science, Art and Literature" was introduced to the House of Representatives. This was followed by a more definite bill in the House providing for a Bureau of Fine Arts with a commissioner appointed by the President and six directors in theater, dance, music, literature, graphic arts, and architecture. The importance of both bills was in their spirit rather than in their content. Both saw government related to the arts; both sought to enlarge the cultural base of American life by making art the enjoyment and the privilege of all the people.

It was obvious that government assistance under the Public Works Administration was coming to an end. A plan was drawn up for a government sponsored theater under ideal conditions. The proposal was for a government department of art to be financed by the yearly proceeds from existing federal amusement taxes. Such a department, in return for the governmental subsidy, would: 1. Provide theatrical, musical, and art activities in 25 to 100 cities; 2. Offer a wide range of free performances for underprivileged groups; 3. Tour the above activities in areas not served by resident groups; 4. Set up training centers in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles for a limited number of youths chosen each year by a professional committee for special training in the arts. In short, the plan proposed that the person who pays a tax on a movie or theater ticket receive some special return on his tax just as the motorist in return for his gasoline taxes often received certain direct benefits in the form of new state roads. The time, obviously, was not auspicious; and the plan needed much study based not only on the history of the only government operated theater in this country so far but on the practices of the commercial theater. It was, like the Federal Theater itself, a blueprint, a memorandum for tomorrow. That tomorrow is here. We have the National Endowment for the Arts...the National Endowment for the Humanities...these are the results of our past experience. Next week I would like to discuss a particular Works Project Administration program...the restoration of the Forest Theater.

CHRISTMAS IN CARMEL, Carmel's celebration of the holidays which was started last year, met with such success that upon the urging of the community it shall be repeated this Saturday at 3 p.m. in Sunset Theater. The program will be the same as last year with the choirs made up of choir members from the churches in the community. Mrs. Ann Welchner again will lead the community in song. So many organizations are offering assistance. Bake your favorite cookies and bring them to share with others. If you would like, plan to bring a gift wrapped with the age on the outside or some canned goods for the Christmas Bureau Basket. Place it under the tree in the lobby. This is a very special community project. Plan to join us in opening the holiday season. It is all free.

THE THIRD company appearing on the Carmel Festival of Dance is the exciting ballet company from San Francisco, Dance Spectrum, which will bring excerpts of its acclaimed new ballet based on the Cinderella story, The Crystal Skipper. Dance Spectrum, which danced here three years ago, has become a company of national importance. The National Endowment for the Arts has twice awarded its artistic director, Carlos Carvajal, choreography fellowships in recognition of his prolific visionary talent. The group will present an exciting program at the Sunset Theater on Saturday, Dec. 9, at 8 p.m. Reserved seating is available. Phone 624-3996 for more information.

A FOOTNOTE: The gross cost of Federal Theater was $46.2 million. For this amount, an average of 10,000 people supported an average of four dependents for four years.

FATHER-AND-SON Carmel artists Harold and David Mason will be present at special exhibitions of their work Friday, Dec. 1 and Monday, Dec. 4, 3-6 p.m. at Phillip Trapp Galleries in the Paseo San Carlos, San Carlos near Ocean, Carmel. Pictured is Harold's watercolor, "The Gathering Place." Son David does hand-colored etchings. (See story elsewhere in this issue.)

Backgammon

By OMAR SHARIF

Black rolls 5-2. How should he play?

ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM

There can really be no answer that is completely wrong. Black is far ahead in the race; he has four points in his home board and has made his bar-point as well; White has no board to speak of and three of his men are, for all practical purposes, out of play on the White 2-point. Why then bother to pose the problem?

Black can play this roll with absolute safety. He can bring a man from his bar-point to his 2-point, and a man from the 5-point to the 3-point. Black will still have an enormous advantage in the race and, barring an absolute disaster, should win in comfort.

But if you played the roll this way, then you lack the killer instinct that is essential for winning backgammon. You should win the game, but your chances for a gammon would be virtually zero.

Like a boxing champion (if I may draw a corollary from a sport I love), when you have your man reeling on the ropes you should go for the knockout. You should not toy with him and so give him the opportunity of a lucky blow which would turn the tables.

For my money, there is only one right move in this position—hit both White blots with men from the Black 6-point. That puts two men on the bar, and White is only a slight favorite to bring in one man at his next turn, and he is a tremendous underdog to bring in both.

If White should stay out, Black almost certainly will close one of the points in his home board, giving him a five-point board with two White men on the bar. Gammon now is a distinct possibility, and even a backgammon cannot be ruled out.

Even should White enter, hitting a blot in the process, it should not harm Black's game much. Black should have no difficulty coming in, and he will still have many chances of closing his board while there is one man, or perhaps two, on the bar.

Careful planning suggested as holiday concerts approach

By SCOTT MACCLELLAND

THE SECOND WAVE is coming. Peninsula concert activities before the end of January are numerous and diverse and give the appearance of bunching up into top heavy weekends. Careful planning is in order so that nothing good is missed.

The Hidden Valley opera season will open Friday, Dec. 8, a week later than originally planned, with Christmas Highlights, a pageant of familiar opera scenes and music of the holidays. This program will be presented at Hidden Valley Theater during two weekends and features full orchestral accompaniment.

On Saturday, Dec. 9, the Carmel Festival of Dance will offer Dance Spectrum, Carlos Carvajal's excellent modern ballet troupe from San Francisco.

Less than a week later, on Thursday, Dec. 14, the Barnyard Theatre will open a run of eight performances of Menotti's Christmas masterpiece, Amahl and the Night Visitors. This will be spread over two weekends and will include evenings and matinees.

That same weekend the Monterey Peninsula Choral Society will perform its annual Christmas program at the Carmel Mission Basilica. Haymo Taeuber will conduct the choir with orchestra in various works featuring the Vivaldi Gloria in D, the Schubert Mass No. 2 and Taeuber's own arrangement of American Christmas music. The concert will be heard on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 15 through 17. Tickets for non-reserved seating at this popular event are available through Dorothy Buffo, 394-6351.

AFTER AN EXTENDED quiet spell the crunch begins again Jan. 12 when Hidden Valley opens its first full opera production of the season, Don Pasquale, a comedy by Donizetti. The schedule calls for performances during four weekends including evenings and matinees. As always at Hidden Valley the opera will be sung in English.

On that same Friday, Jan. 12, the Chamber Music Society will sponsor the Cleveland Quartet at Sunset Theatre. This will be the Cleveland's second performance for the Society and the program will include the Quartet in E by Mendelssohn, the Bartok Quartet No. 5 and the Quartet in B flat, Op. 67 by Brahms. Available balcony tickets will be sold at the door.

Sunday afternoon, Jan. 14, the Monterey Peninsula Concert Association will host the Odessa Balalaikas at the Pacific Grove Junior High School auditorium. Ticket memberships will be available at the door for the 2:30 p.m. event.

The Monterey County Symphony already is processing requests for tickets to its Monday, Jan. 22 concert at Sunset. The requests are coming from season ticket holders to the symphony's Sunday series at King Hall because the Pittsburgh Chamber Orchestra will appear for the Carmel Music Society on that day, Jan. 21 at Sunset. The Pittsburgh ensemble will be conducted by the renowned horn virtuoso, Barry Tuckwell, who also will play a concerto, probably one of the Mozart four. Also featured will be pianist Andre-Michel Schub who will play the Beethoven Concerto No. 2 in B flat.

The Monterey County Symphony's program that weekend will include Stravinsky's enchanting Pulcinella, the Mozart Flute Concerto in D with L.A. Philharmonic principal Anne Diener Giles, and the Symphony No. 3 "Scottish" by Mendelssohn. Two repeat performances will be at King Hall on Sunday, Jan. 21 and at Sunset the following night.

Computer chess at Game Gallery

A championship computer chess match between Boris, the defending champion of home chess computers and CompuChess—Second Edition, a contender to the throne, will be played at the Game Gallery, San Carlos and Seventh, Carmel, on Wednesday, Dec. 6, at 2:30 p.m.

Computers were first programmed to play chess in the 1950s but did not compete in chess championships until 1970. In September 1977, Grandmaster Stean of England became the first champion to be defeated by a computer.

Home chess computers are designed to provide chess enthusiasts with a partner. However, gallery owners Norma Black and Harry Domash have arranged this match to settle conflicting claims of program superiority.

Everyone is welcome to observe the free competition. For more information, phone 625-1771.

Farrell's touch

By the Rev. LARRY FARRELL

Returning from a long journey to the Atlantic Ocean islands—hopping from Newfoundland to Great Britain, the Isle of Man to Iceland to Greenland—the most welcome sight in 40 days was the sun-drenched water of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Thank you, Lord.

However, the most important journey a man can make is the one in which he meets the other fellow halfway. Alas, most men who claim to meet us halfway are damn poor judges of distance.

O Lord, help us to put love into practice which is just another way of saying that we are prepared to treat everyone we meet as a human being and this isn't as easy as it sounds. Finally, may we realize that the man incapable of giving or receiving love is already in Hell and also one helluva mess.

(Editor's note: The Rev. Farrell, a Roman Catholic priest, delivered this invocation to the Carmel Rotary Club on Nov. 8.)

Christmas in Carmel celebration Saturday

Christmas in Carmel, the second annual community celebration of the holiday season, will fill Sunset Theater with caroling choirs in a program of music from many lands. The celebration begins at 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2; everyone is welcome and there is no charge for admission.

Carols from Germany, France, Spain, Italy and Japan will be sung by the combined choirs of many local churches. Ann Welchner, who directed last year's program, will again be on the podium. A children's choir, accompanied by William Zeitler at the piano, will also perform.

Community singing by audience members is an integral part of the afternoon. The Carmel Pine Cone edition of Nov. 30 will print a number of Christmas carols to be sung. These include Silent Night in English and five foreign languages!

A social hour will follow.

Slides, lecture Wed. at Foundation

Disappearing Americana, a slide/lecture show, will be presented by the Carmel Foundation at its regular weekly meeting Wednesday, Dec. 6, at Diment Hall, Lincoln and Ninth, Carmel. The free program, which begins at 2:30 p.m., will be followed by tea. Everyone is welcome. Traditional holiday sweets and treats from faraway lands will be served. Local organizations, fraternal clubs, ethnic groups, bakeries and other businesses will provide the refreshments.

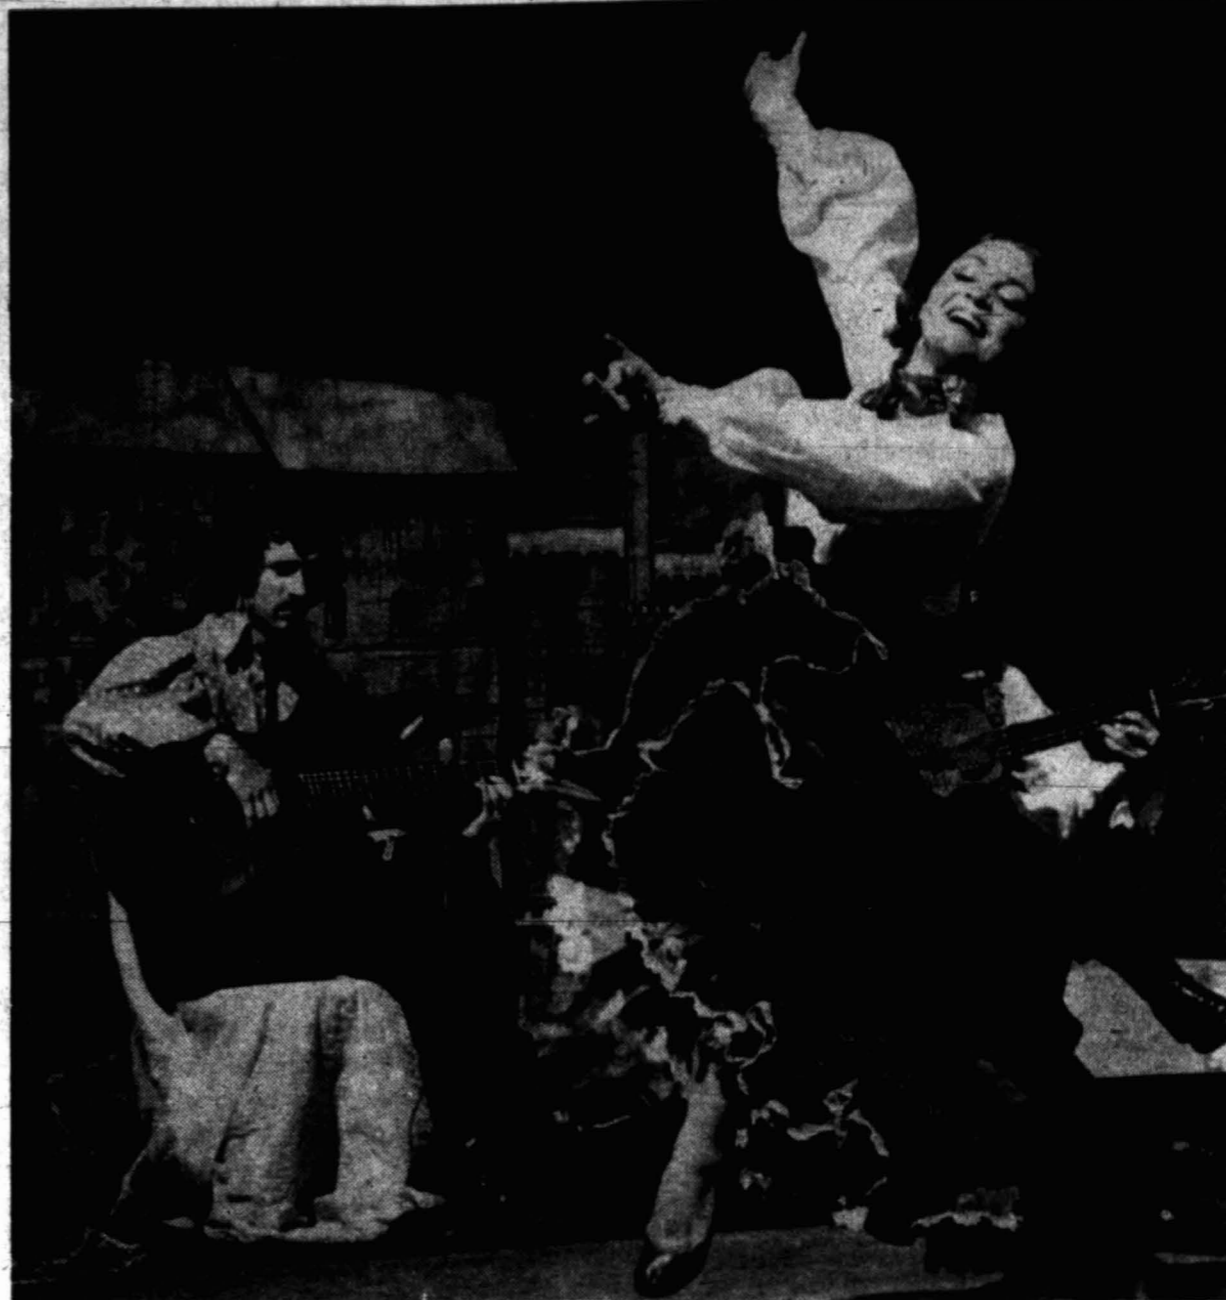

An art exhibit in the Sunset Theater foyer by local school children will explore the Christmas in Carmel theme.

Anyone who wishes to contribute to the Salvation Army Christmas Bureau Basket drive may bring a wrapped gift with the age of the recipient on the outside, or contribute canned goods for Christmas baskets. The gifts may be placed under the Christmas tree in the theater lobby.

welcome.

William F. Stone, local artist and teacher, will offer commentary on vanishing relics of the American scene.

Carmel Foundation is a non-profit organization serving the social and cultural needs of older residents in the community.

GYPSY SPIRIT: dancer Holly Lynn changes from soft to scorching when "Doradus" performs Flamenco music and dances at the Carmel Barnyard Theatre, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. The three-member group will appear at 8:30 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 30-Dec. 2.

Hjordis Parker will narrate Explorama's 'My Norway' film

"Norway is ever changing but changeless," says travel-adventure filmmaker Hjordis Kittel Parker, who will appear at Sunset Theater, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel to narrate her Explorama film, My Norway, Thursday and Friday, Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 at 8:15 p.m.

My Norway is a personal look at the country from a historical perspective. Each major sequence begins with a historical introduction and develops into Norwegian life today to show the influence of the strong Viking spirit throughout the nation's history.

Mrs. Parker believes in a theme, without which "all you have is a travelog which usually becomes boring very quickly. A theme gives you a dramatic framework and lets you build to a climax, just as a work of fiction," she says.

The Laplanders, whose total population is approximately 35,000, are of special interest to Mrs. Parker, who believes these people live today much as they did during the last Ice Age 15,000 years ago.

The nomadic Laplanders carry on traditions that are thousands of years old. They survive the cold by wearing clothing made of reindeer skin. "This is proof, at least to me, that they could have survived the Ice Age," Mrs. Parker comments.

Other periods of Norwegian history covered in the film are the Viking era, including a glimpse at how the Vikings could have sailed to America, the Nazi occupation of Norway, the ruling exile of King Haakon and the country as it is today.

The film includes 900-year-old burial sites; Viking ships and modern shipping; the southern seacoast town of Arendal; stave churches from the 12th century; young people of Oslo in an Independence Day Parade; the Arctic city of Tromsø; the islands of Svalbard; glaciers, icecaps and icebergs filmed by the light of the midnight sun; the North Pole Hotel; mountain climbing in the "troll peaks"; Grieg's home and the Bergen International Festival; modern jewelry making; Norwegian industry and farming; family life; educational system; the King addressing the opening of Parliament; the wedding of Crown Prince Harald; and sports activities.

Hjordis Parker began filmmaking 27 years ago after she saw a "dreadful" film about Norway. She has produced nine films, all dealing with the Scandinavian countries, including four on Norway. Each film takes about two years to produce, one in research and preparation, another in filming and editing.

Called one of the top travel lecturers in the United States by the National Geographic Society, Mrs. Parker has been decorated by King Olav V and King Gustav VI and the president of Finland for her work. The Sons of Norway Lodge gave her their 1968 award for Most Outstanding Norwegian Personality of the Year.

Reserved seat tickets, at $3.75, are available at Macy's, Del Monte Center, Monterey; Abinante Music, Monterey; Bartlett Music, Carmel.

CARMEL BUSINESSES FIRE TRAPS, CHIEF SAYS

A rash of fires, most recently at Sally's on Dolores and Seventh, points to the need for stricter building ordinances, Fire Chief Robert Leidig said in an interview Monday.

It is possible that Carmel could have a fire that would consume the business district because of the flammable materials used to build, Leidig said.

"We can stop a blaze in a high wind if the surrounding structures are stucco or concrete," he said. "But with frame stores, no firemen or apparatus can stop a blaze from spreading after it gets a good start in a high wind."

Volunteer firemen responded to Sunday's fire at Sally's within 90 seconds of it being reported, he stated. However, flames were spreading rapidly by the time the firefighters arrived.

SARDINE THIEF RAIDS CARMEL

A man who police say may have robbed as many as 30 homes in Carmel is still at large, but there is a personality trait that may lead to his capture—he is a sardine fiend.

Houses entered by the thief are spared if cans of sardines are stocked in the cupboards.

One resident said he thought the thief could easily be outsmarted by putting a sign in the window that said, "Yes, We Have No Sardines." However, that sign has apparently cost the homeowner money, valuables and wrecked furniture.

Now, instead of carrying burglary insurance or locking the doors, he says that cans of sardines are placed in strategic points in the house. There is one in his necktie drawer and jewelry box.

The family now sleeps in peace.

TWIN OFFICER TAKES TO BEAT

Officer Francis "Bob" Fischer patrolled Carmel for the first time Tuesday as the new member of the Carmel Police Department. He fills the position left by the departure of Dan Throp.

Bill Ellis will assume the day desk responsibilities that were Throp's for two and a half years.

Having Fischer in uniform is a help to residents. People will be able to distinguish between him and his twin brother Eddie, who works for Carl and Chan.

BATHTUB DENIED. RULING WILL BE APPEALED

Hazel Rider is appealing the Carmel Planning Commission ruling made Nov. 19 that denied her a bathtub in an office addition adjoining her apartment-hotel complex. The City Council will hear her appeal at next week's meeting.

Mrs. Rider insisted during two commission meetings that the office would be used for business purposes only and the tub was only a convenience for her.

Commission members said that they believed her intentions are honorable, but a new owner might not have her integrity.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

The antique LaVerne firewagon will be retired when the new fire engine arrives January 1954 at the Carmel Fire Department.

Fire Chief Vincent Torras said that eight volunteers are needed to fill the positions created by the acquisition of a larger engine. This will raise the total of Carmel volunteers to 40.

CITY COUNCIL ALLOWS EDGEMERE EXPANSION

In a surprise 4-1 decision, the City Council reversed a unanimous ruling made last month by the planning commission which will allow expansion of the Edgemere Cottages in a residential area.

The council action was made in the face of opposition by the Carmel Citizens' Committee. The committee supported the ordinance passed in the last election that required review of expansion plans made by motels in residential areas.

Councilmen Herbert Blanks, Eben Whittlesey, Ken Brown and Mayor Barney Laiolo supported the ruling. The no vote was made by Councilman Frank Falge.

CARMEL POINT HOME A BARGAIN

Less than four years old, this retirement gem is a delight to show. Excellent first impression made by the sturdy stone facade, the patio-courtyard, attractive landscaping and outdoor lighting. The unique interior features vaulted ceilings in the living room and master bedroom. Separate den/dining room. Two bedrooms and two baths. . . $49,000.

Cookie tips

Tips for holiday cookie baking and the advantages of Romertopf cookery will be demonstrated this weekend at the Peppercorn in the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to attend the free program.

Special cookie recipes for the Christmas season will be demonstrated Saturday, Dec. 2, from 11 a.m. to early afternoon; the Romertopf, a clay cooker that keeps food moist and speeds cooking time, will be demonstrated Sunday, Dec. 3, during the same hours.

Famous flamenco troupe 'Doradus' performs Thurs.-Sat. at Barnyard

Doradus, a Flamenco troupe, will appear at the Carmel Barnyard Theatre to open the International Christmas Celebration at the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. Doradus will perform Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 30-Dec. 2 and Dec. 7-9 at 8:30 p.m.

The troupe, which is associated with the San Jose Ballet, performed at Carmel's outdoor Forest Theater this summer.

The three-member troupe includes guitarists Kent

Newman and Wayne Robertson and dancer Holly Lynn. They bring a historical approach to the gypsy dances and music of Spain.

Their repertoire ranges from tender lullabies and solitary song of the matador to the passionate tapping of Tacaneo, the exuberant dance that is called "the soul of Flamenco."

Holly Lynn has toured extensively throughout the United States and South America and has appeared with the San Francisco Ballet Company and on television. She was principal dancer with Gene Marinaccio's American Concert Ballet.

"Miss Lynn dances with the kind of effervescent ease that comes only through natural endowment. She offers powerful evidence to support the argument that dancers are born not made," wrote the San Francisco Chronicle.

Tickets, at $4.50, are available at the box office; reservations may be made by phoning 625-1228.

The wine connoisseur

California winemakers challenge the French

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

The noble grape of Burgundy, Pinot noir, thrives in many of Northern California's prime vineyards, but wine from even the most skilled California vintners seldom challenge the excellence of the French original.

The reason? Soil primarily, and that other environmental factor, climate.

Give a Golden Christmas!

Imagine this lovely, 4-year-old golden palomino with a bright red bow on Christmas morning! He's slightly more than 15-2 hands (and still growing), friendly and personable, a real "pet." He's also well started over fences and at dressage and is a natural trail horse. Moves nicely, loads well and is an easy keeper. $850.

(408) 624-8086; (408) 659-4340

But California winemakers persist in the challenge.

Early one autumn morning in Sonoma, I walked along the rows of vines ready for harvesting with winemaker Rod Strong. "There are a couple dozen so-called true clones of Pinot noir even in Burgundy," he told me, stopping to pick a cluster. The berries were plump, filled with concentrated white juice. I'd seen identical grapes at Savigny-les-Beaune in the Clos des Guettes vineyards of Henri de Villamont in the Cote d'Or, older vines, but in century-tested soil. "I'm sure we can do it," Rod said. The wine won a gold medal in 1974.

Turned off, perhaps, by the thorny problems of vinification of the grape as a red wine, some California winemakers have experimented with Pinot noir as a rose. Before you turn up your nose at the category, there is some evidence that this fine, but difficult vinifera may indeed be right. Not all pink wines are ladies luncheon wines. In the last few weeks we've tasted three blush-pink wines of Pinot noir grapes that are nothing short of sensational. Two are from Sonoma and one from the Napa Valley.

Hacienda Wine Cellars 1977 Pinot Noir Blanc ($4) made by Steven MacCrostie is listed as a white wine, fermented as a white wine and, while it has an undeniable hint of pink from the free-run juice, is dry, fruity and unmistakably a masculine wine of Pinot noir breed.

Another wonder from the controversial vine is Rutherford Hill 1977 Napa Valley Pinot Noir Blanc ($4.50). Although labeled "Blanc," the wine is not white. But the color is as incandescent as neon, and almost as bright, as it picks up light reflections. Bright and almost coppery, it's beautiful to behold. Never mind that the juice-only from which it was made had some color-leaching from the skins, that color in the crystal bottle, and even better in the glass, is in its favor.

Winemaker Philip Baxter notes on the label as ".15 per cent residual sugar by weight" which translates in taste as very, very minimal. Slightly chilled, it will be mighty welcome in before-dinner pouring. You might even want another bottle to continue on with dinner, no matter what your main course. You can put this down as a rave review.

Winemaker Bill Bonetti, at Souverain of Alexander Valley, poured us his 1978 Sonoma Pinot Noir Rose at the winery last month only 24 hours after its first fining. The almost strawberry fragrance leaped out of the glass before we could pick it up. The 1977 bottled version, possibly still available here and there, at $2.79 is a bargain not to miss. Frankly a rose, but with minimal time "on the skins" in fermentation, fruity yet dry, it also is undeniably Pinot noir in breed.

All three of the above wines are for immediate enjoyment. Like all pink-hued wines, with charm in freshness and color, like roses themselves, they wither with age.

But when the juice of Pinot noir grapes becomes a principal ingredient in the blending cuvee of champagne, whether there's any blush of color or not, a year or two of cellar-age after purchase does not matter.

The new Domaine Chandon Napa Valley Blanc de Noir ($8.50) masterminded by Edmund Maudiere of Epernay, the skilled champagne master of Dom Perignon, has a frankly apricot-blush, but has true elegance as one of California's most distinguished champagnes.

It is rivaled by the 1973 Schramsberg Napa Valley Blanc de Noir, produced by Jack Davies from his own hillside Napa Valley Pinot noir vines, but without a trace of color. It is nothing short of a tour de force. Packaged in a crystal bottle, pale golden white in color, it is luxurious at $11.50 and, like the prow of a Rolls Royce, has immediate prestige impact upon appearance.

All of the above wines owe their winning merit to the noble vitis vinifera from Burgundy, Pinot noir. While it may indeed be, as some have said, "a thorn in the side of California winemakers," all is far from lost. Each of the above wines is a triumph with that grape.

Seven Quails on Carmel Point

The walls are almost two feet thick. Two courses of genuine adobe bricks made from special clay found in the Upper Valley by the architect, Hugh Comstock. The house is "bound" by a run of cedar timbers, just under the projecting eaves, and crowned by heavy shake roof (where the quails stand guard).

Inside and out, the adobe's painted white; the cedar trim, slab doors and hand-hewn beams in every room were left to weather naturally. Built in 1934 by George Mark Whitcomb (with Comstock checking every move), it is said to be one of only two truly authentic adobe houses in Carmel. Doors are heavy cedar, windows are deepset, floors in living and dining rooms and the two original bedrooms are dark-stained adobe bricks, slightly irregular and worn smooth.

In 1972 a large master bedroom and very modern bath were added just back of the kitchen. The adobe's not the same, but the ceiling is faithfully beamed like all the other rooms. The bath features a sunken tub and shower, from which glass doors open to an open-air, very private, sundeck.

Brick patios surround the house, a fountain plays above a decorative pool, and a fenced patio looks eastward up the long reaches and mountain walls of the Carmel Valley. You hear the Mission bells, bird songs from the nearby Bird Sanctuary, and a good ear can pick up the sound of the surf a scant two blocks away.

There's the feel of Old Europe in this house, except for its up-to-the-minute conveniences: a beautifully equipped kitchen with red brick floors (and a Corning cook-top range); laundry nook along the corridor to the master bedroom; 2½ baths; adobe fireplaces in living and dining rooms, the latter with copper hood.

A comfortable guest house with spacious living room, sleeping alcove, bath, wet bar and a private patio is just west of the main house. You'll find it at 2519 - 16th Avenue, corner of Carmelo. Look for the 7 quails up on the roof. It's $295,000.

Coast funds may lapse

Program, a plan to research Carmel issues such as parking and land use, is five months behind schedule, according to Robert Griggs, the Carmel city planning director. Funding from the state Department of Planning and Research was scheduled to begin in July and coincide with the various work tasks through July 1979, according to Griggs. Because the council has failed to approve the program, funding has been delayed, Griggs said.

Griggs said the city may have to request an extension of the funding deadline scheduled to expire in seven months.

The state approved $15,200 in funding in July.

Approval of the work program was delayed by Carmel Mayor Gunnar Norberg in October when he objected to its wording. At the Oct. 2 council meeting, Norberg complained that the plan, written by private consultant Gregory Cory, had grammatical errors. He did not object to the substance of the program, however. Norberg has revised the plan. His revision will be reviewed by the council next Monday.

The original work program was approved by the council in May. But the council has not approved the state revisions to the plan.

Once approved, the work program will serve as a guideline for the coastal plan the city must complete by July 1981. That plan will recommend solutions to local problems that pertain primarily to the Carmel coast.

Five meetings will be scheduled during 1979 for comments from residents on the plan, according to Griggs.

Carmel may have to reapply to the state for funding for its coastal planning money because the Carmel City Council has delayed approving the application.
